JUDGE BRODY DENIES WRIT CORAM NOBIS

Former Lincoln Trust President's Attorney Serves Notice of Appeal from District Court Ruling—Defendant Present When Order Entered Against Him.

Developments in the C. C. Carlsen forgery case moved swiftly Tuesday morning. District Judge Jefferson Broady denied Carlsen's application for a writ of coram nobis. The clerk of the Supreme court placed in the mails, addressed to the District court clerk of Lancaster county, the mandate ordering Carlsen's commitment to the penitentiary for from three to nine years.

The supreme court, on learning shortly before noon Tuesday that Judge Broady had denied Carlsen's petition for a writ of coram nobis, ordered the clerk to place the mandate in the mails.

Possible Steps.

But three, possibly four—legal steps are said to remain through which Carlsen's committment may be withheld and to be effective they must be invoked almost at once. They are:

1. His attorneys may file a motion in the supreme court to recall the mandate.

2. In connection with an appeal Judge Broady's ruling denying the application for a writ of coram nobis—E. B. Perry, one of Carlsen's attorneys gave notice in open court that would stand on the coram nobis petition and file a supreme court appeal on writ of error within two hours—an application for suspension of sentence may be attached.

3. After the clerk of the district court has received the mandate, has issued a mittimus to the county sheriff, and after the sheriff has taken Carlsen into custody, a habeas corpus action may be filed in federal court here to prevent committment.

4. After Carlsen has been taken in custody, an application may be made to Judge Broady to allow bail and permission sought for filing of a supersedeas bond pending adjudication of the appeal on the coram nobis ruling.

Attorney Perry, asked if he had any comment to make on what steps he might take, other than the appeal from Judge Broady's ruling as previously described, said he had "nothing to say."

In the courtroom at the time Judge Broady sustained the

Lee Lawrie, Sculptor For Nebraska Capitol, Gives Final Approval Of Work On Unannounced Visit To City

A brief, unannounced visit to Lincoln Monday afternoon by Lee Lawrie, of New York City, sculptor of the Nebraska state capitol, signalized the completion of more than ten and a half years of carving on the walls of the building.

Mr. Lawrie, who is recognized to be one of the leading architectural sculptors of the world, placed its final approval on the execution of his work. He also spent several hours in inspecting various portions of the building. It was his first visit to Lincoln since 1928, when construction of the tower had just begun.

Finish Bas-Relief.

An 8-by-10-foot bas-relief at the west entrance of the building was the last carving which was finished Monday. It was an ancient Roman scene, representing "The Establishment of the Tribunate of the People," one in a series of panels which form a circuit around the exterior walls of the capitol. This circuit traces the development of the law as shown in its history—the story being presented in its relationship to the history of Nebraska.

Carving of Mr. Lawrie's work was begun in April, 1924, a few days before the death of the architect, the late Bertram Grosvenor Goodhue. The Edward Ardolino company, of New York City, one of the leading stone-carving firms in America, was given the contract for the execution of Mr. Lawrie's work.

Seven skilled carvers, ranking among the best in the world, were sent to Lincoln. They spent eighteen months here, working mostly at the north and south entrances. Then, after a lapse of about a year, the foreman of the first group, Alessandro Beretta, a native of Carrara, Italy, returned. He has been in Lincoln almost continuously since.

Mr. Beretta will leave Thursday for his home in New York. After

MINISTERS ASK FOR REFERENDUM BEFORE LICENSE

Want No Hard Liquor In Lincoln Before Vote Taken.

SEEK LIMITATION BEER SALE HOURS

Also Demand No Beer Be Sold Where Dancing Allowed.

Resolutions presented by the civic relations committee of the Lincoln Ministerial association, and passed by the association at its executive session Monday, recommended that the city council not grant licenses to sell hard or intoxicating liquors until a referendum upon the sale of such liquors be held, at the next city election; that an amendment be passed creating an excise board having regulatory powers over the sale of liquor; and that the legal hours for sale of beer be from 9 a. m. until 8 p. m., from Monday to Saturday inclusive.

The ministers urge that no licenses shall be issued to any location where a dance hall is operated, and that no dancing be permitted on the location where beer is sold. They also request that no distributor be allowed to give "without cost beer, or sandwiches or lunches," nor to include beer in table d'hote menus in hotels or restaurants.

A fourth resolution was directed to the board of directors of the Nebraska State Fair board, and to the president and secretary of the board, asking that pari-mutuel race track gambling and the sale of liquor not be allowed on the fair fair grounds, on the grounds that such conditions would not be proper environment for the state 4-H boys and girls.

Rev. Ray E. Hunt was chairman of the committee submitting the resolutions, and was assisted by Rev. Walter Aitken and Rev. H. H. Marsden. Rev. W. F. Perry

DRIZZLING RAIN FALLS IN STATE

McCook Precipitation Heaviest; .15 Inch In Lincoln.

Almost the entire state was receiving a slow, light rain Tuesday, according to reports reaching the Burlington. None of the reports indicated more than light showers except from McCook where between a half inch and an inch had fallen during the morning. No reports of rain were received from the Hastings or Fairbury area.

Lincoln had .15 of an inch between 7 o'clock Tuesday morning and 12:30 in several intermittent drizzles. The fall brought the November total to 1.38 inches. The sky remained overcast and the mercury stayed almost in one place, hovering around the 47 degree mark.

Omaha received a very light fall but at Kansas City and St. Joseph nearly an inch was recorded. The rains also appeared to extend well into Iowa.

TAX RULING NOT APPLICABLE HERE

Special Levies Can't Be Paid In Advance, Say City Officials.

Ruling by the state Supreme court that property owners may pay special assessment taxes in full in advance, instead of taking up each installment as it falls due, does not apply to Lincoln, it was contended by city officials Tuesday. The case which came up from Geneva, applies only to cities of the second class and villages, and Lincoln is a city of the first class, operating under a home rule charter.

According to City Clerk Berg the charter provides that special assessments taxes except water, become delinquent one-tenth 50 days after the assessment, and one-tenth annually thereafter. "The total special tax on any lot may be paid within fifty days of its levy and the money so paid shall go to the sinking fund," the charter adds.

OVERDUE FUNDS ON DAWES LOAN SOUGHT BY RFC

Suit Filed Against Central Republic Bank Stockholders.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20—(AP)—The Reconstruction Finance corporation moved today to collect a part of overdue funds in the $90,000,000 "Dawes loan."

In Federal court yesterday attorneys for the RFC filed suit against the 4,000 stockholders of the Central Republic Trust company seeking to determine their liability in the claimed $60,000,000 unpaid balance.

The court was asked to determine if recovery could be made of $14.000.000, the amount of the company's capital stock. Among stockholders named is General Charles G. Dawes, one-time official of the company.

While the Central Republic was extended $90,000.000 credit by the RFC, only $80.000,000 was actually borrowed by the institution, a loan of $30.000.000 being obtained on June 29, 1932, and $50,000,000 on October 5, 1932. The suit alleged $7,022,000 was still unpaid on the first loan and $52.000,000, including interest, was due on the second.

John L. Hopkins, an attorney for the RFFC, said he understood the state auditor might be asked to take over the Central Republic for liquidation. William C. Freeman, vice president in active charge of the institution, said that while the bill asked for a receiver who would handle money that might be collected from the stockholders, it did not necessarily mean a receivership for the bank.

The organization formerly was known as the Central Republic Bank and Trust company, but the name was changed when the City National Bank and Trust company took over deposits two years ago. The City National, whose chairman is General Dawes, is not involved in the litigation. Dawes had resigned as chairman of the RFC prior to the granting of the loan.

The RFC's bill yesterday said that payment had been demanded between November 4, 1933 and July 17, 1934, but the nature of the company's reply was not made public. Also, the bill stated, the RFC learned on November 17 that the company was not in position to pay its bills.

FASCIST COUP STORY DENIED BY MACGUIRE

New Yorker Denies Asked Gen. Butler to Lead 'Army' of 500,000.

EX-MARINE HEAD 'NOT INTERESTED'

N. Y. Post Tells of Plot to Set Up United States Dictatorship.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Smedley Butler, retired ranking officer of the U. S. marine corps, was called before the house committee investigating un-American activities today to testify regarding reports that Butler was asked by a group of "wealthy New York brokers to lead a fascist movement to set up a dictatorship in the United States."

Representative John W. McCormack, chairman of the committee, questioned the retired marine general two hours. For a time Congressman Samuel Dickstein, vice chairman of the committee, attended the questioning, but left at noon to appear before a Supreme court justice to oppose the filing of incorporation papers by the Friends of New Germany.

The reports of Butler's charges were that he told those who allegedly approached him that he wasn't interested in fascism or "in any other ism," and that "I wouldn't consider any such proposition."

Dickstein said the committee was checking "Butler's story."

Dickstein also said that a subpoena had been served upon Gerald P. MacGuire of the brokerage firm of Grayson M. P. Murphy & Co., who, the reports of Butler's charges said, had approached Butler and asked him to organize 500,000 veterans into a fascist army.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—(AP)—The New York Post says in a copyrighted story today that Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler has disclosed that he has been asked by a group of "wealthy New York brokers to lead a fascist move-

Street Tunnels For Pedestrians Are Suggested

The board of education will ask the city to incorporate in its FERA program for the winter months the construction of a number of pedestrian tunnels at several particularly dangerous points in the city. Upon the suggestion of Arthur Dobson, member of the board, the body recorded itself as favoring such projects.

Mr. Dobson pointed out that several cities have already started such tunnels and in some places they are completed. "Not only will it be a great protection to our school children," Mr. Dobson said, "but it is directly in line with plans of the government in realigning the traffic levels."

Suggested points for the tunnels were: Thirteenth and F streets, near the fire barn at Twenty-third and O streets, and near Clinton school on Holdrege street.

CHANGE ORDERED IN WESTERN U. S. FREIGHT RATES

Designed to Cut Short Haul Charge and Boost Those for Long Hauls.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission today ordered a revision of western trunk line class freight rates designed to increase the revenues of the railroads by reducing short haul rates and in effect increasing those for longer hauls.

The commission also created a new rate zone in eastern Wyoming to be known as Zone 4 with a freight rate 15 per cent higher than for what is known as Zone 3.

Zone 4 consists of stations in Wyoming on roads extending from Sheridan and Casper east when traffic comes from points on and east of the Missouri river. This previously had been known as Sub-Zone 3.

Revision of 1930 Decision.

The finding is a revision of the western trunk line rate cases decided on May 6, 1930, when the commission authorized a general increase because of the relatively low level of western class rates.

The railroads found on application of the original decision that it did not create the revenues desired, and asked the commission to overhaul its previous decision authorizing lower rates on short haul shipments in order to meet motor truck competition and bring about some means of increasing revenues from long haul shipments.

The commission said today that the railroads had sustained

Sharp Increase Revealed In 1934 Income For U. S.

Upturn Expected to Be Making Major Strides By End of Year.

BY G. A. PHILLIPS.
Associated Press Financial Writer.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—(AP)—A sharp curve upward in the income of the American people in 1934 is indicated by estimates of leading trade analysts who place it around $9.000.000.000 more than last year.

This reversal of the pendulum, which swung steadily in the wrong direction from 1929, when the national income was roughly $86.106.000.000, to 1933, when it was about $49.560.000.000, is believed by some economists to form the groundwork of a broad concave base which will sustain a relative degree of prosperity over a number of years.

Statistics indicate that unless something now unforeseen interferes, expectations are that the upturn will be making major strides at the end of this year and the income may total about $58.500.000.000.

HEAVY RAINS IN MISSOURI.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 20—(AP)—Soaking rains received in many parts of Missouri in the last 24 hours had done much today to relieve the deficiency in sub-soil moisture which has existed almost from the start of the year. The heaviest downpour was in the southwest part of the state.

$100,000 ASKED FOR RELEASE OF WILLIAM WEISS

Prominent Night Life Figure, Missing Since October 26, Threatened With Death Unless Ransom Paid—Family Delays Asking Help of Federal Agents.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20—(AP)—Federal agents making a belated start in the search for William Weiss, wealthy night life figure who vanished more than three weeks ago, clamped a ban of secrecy upon their movements today.

They acknowledged only that Weiss has been missing since October 26; that his family has received "about a half dozen" notes, threatening death to Weiss if $100,000 is not paid, and that they have been working toward a solution since Sunday night, when the missing man's family sought their help.

Kept Secret By Family.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20—(AP)—The 24-day-old kidnaping of William Weiss, prominent Philadelphia night life figure, kept a family secret since his disappearance, was being pieced together today by United States department of justice agents.

Weiss vanished from sight after leaving home for his office in downtown Philadelphia on the morning of October 26, the federal agents learned, and notes demanding $100,000 ransom from his family followed.

Where he was kidnaped is a mystery, R. George Harvey, head of the Philadelphian bureau of investigation of the department of justice, said.

Six ransom notes have been received at Weiss' home in suburban Overbrook. The contents of the notes Harvey refused to dis-

"They're all convicted by our evidence," the government attorney told the jury in Judge James H. Wilkerson's court. "Each had a part to play in a monstrous, gigantic fraud."

The government's closing argument, begun late in yesterday's session of the mail fraud trial, took the entire morning today.

SHERWOOD CHILD STILL CRITICAL

Infant Burned by Hot Coffee Has Small Chance Recover.

Little hope is held for the recovery of Alvin Neal Sherwood, 18-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sherwood, 1511 South Second street, who was critically burned when he accidentally upset a pot of boiling coffee over his entire body in the kitchen of his parents' home about 6 o'clock Monday evening.

Dr. Louis E. Marx, attending the youngster at St. Elizabeth's hospital, said that he suffered third degree burns over the chest, back, neck, head, arm and upper abdomen. Dr. Marx said Tuesday the child's condition remained critical with practically no change.

The child was burned when he grabbed the cord on the electric percolator, and upset the contents on himself. He was playing in the kitchen, where his mother was preparing the evening meal when the accident occurred.

The baby's father, Kenneth Sherwood, is also confined to St. Elizabeth's hospital, where he has been suffering from a nervous breakdown and eye trouble for the past three weeks.

Revoke Kansantoness Parole, Jail Former Inmate After An Attempt Smuggle Liquor Into Reformatory

Thomas Kansantoness, 18, Lincoln, paroled reformatory inmate, is back in that institution to serve the remainder of his term, and Harry Wisely, 23, who was discharged last Saturday from the reformatory on completion of his term, is in the county jail awaiting trial on a charge of illegal transportation of liquor as a result of their alleged attempt to smuggle a bottle of liquor into the reformatory early Sunday morning.

N. T. Harmon, state probation officer, disclosed the incident Tuesday in announcing the return to the reformatory of the Lincoln boy, who was paroled October 11 after serving 13 months of a sentence of 1 to 3 years for burglary. Wisely served a year for breaking and entering in York county.

Tipped off that an attempt would be made to smuggle liquor into the institution, reformatory officials were waiting at the south gate shortly after midnight Saturday when a car drove within a block of the gate and stopped, said Harmon, who conducted a hearing into the affair Monday.

A man later identified as Wisely got out of the car and approached a garage building, as the reformatory officials dashed out of the gate and seized him. Wisely, Harmon said, threw the bottle away. At the same time, a reformatory official drove up with his automobile and threw the car's lights full on the other machine. A man, recognized as Kansantoness, jumped out and fled, succeeding in getting away. Kansantoness was taken into custody today at his home later Sunday, Harmon said.

Wisely pleaded not guilty to the liquor charge Tuesday in Municipal court and his trial was set for November 23 by Judge Polk.

4,000,000 MUST BE RE-EMPLOYED SAYS RICHBERG

Inflation Orgy Worst Possibly 'Quack Remedy' Avers Recovery Chief.

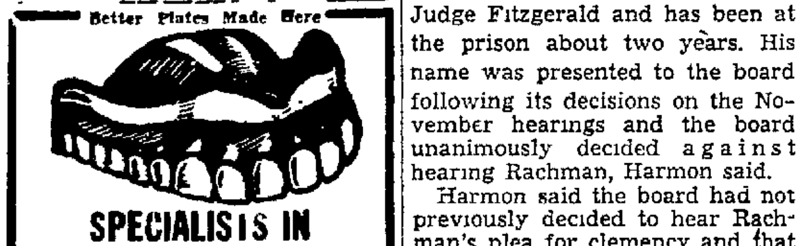

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 20—(AP)—Either private enterprise or further expansion of governmental activities must be utilized at once to provide re-employment for from four to five million workers, Donald R. Richberg, President Roosevelt's recovery chieftain, believes.

The recovery leader, addressing industrial and business leaders of the southeast last night, cited the vast need of better housing as one way of advancing recovery. At the same time he decried "another orgy of inflation" as the worst possible of all "quack remedies" offered the nation.

The southeastern leaders heard Richberg say foundations have been laid in the past 20 months for a political economic system in which private enterprise can compete for individual profit and at the same time co-operate to maintain a proper balance between the interests of agriculture, trade, industry, management, labor and consumer.

"If the private managers of our financial and business institutions are ready and willing to build a new industrial structure upon these foundations, now is their opportunity," he declared.

ASKS REVIVAL MISSION SPIRIT

Crusading Spirit Built America Bishop Bentley Tells Meeting.

An appeal for Americans to return to the early missionary spirit which built the country was sounded by Rev. John Boyd Bentley, suffragan bishop of Alaska, as he spoke at a mass meeting in Holy Trinity Episcopal church on Monday night. Bishop Bentley, visiting the diocese in an educational campaign, sketched the history of Alaskan church work, and clarified it with incidents from his experience of travel by summer launch and winter dog sled.

"There are those who say they do not believe in missions," he said, "but everything we have in this country is because the people of the past, missionary founders, did believe in missions." From the time of "Good Master" Robert Hunter, who landed at Jamestown in 1607, the bishop explained that "there has been a tremendous growth until today there are some 6,000 men who, like Hunter, are working to establish and extend the dominion of God."

The story of church growth in Alaska was outlined by Bishop Bentley as he lauded the work of Rt. Rev. Peter Trimble Rowe, missionary bishop for the district of Alaska, and Rev. John Wright Chapman, who built the church at Anvik in 1888.

Gathered in the front of the auditorium Monday night, a group of Boy Scouts listened intently to Bishop Bentley tell of winter treks over the snow by dog sled. The 900-mile circuit he said, often requires loneliness in the cold, as—parka-clad—he makes the round from camp to camp.

Rivers Alaska Highways.

From St. Mark's mission at Nenana where he is stationed, Rev. and Mrs. Bentley also start on a summer journey. the bishop explained. Traveling by rivers—"the highways of Alaska"—in their launch, they make about 4,000 miles on the summer visitation.

Bishop E. V. Shayler introduced the visiting speaker, and Rev. H. H. Marsden assisted with the services. Visits throughout the diocese will include stops at Beatrice, Tuesday; Omaha, Wednesday, and Norfolk, Thursday. Representatives of all city Episcopal congregations attended the Monday night meeting.

LUTHERAN GROUP HOLDS SESSIONS

Dispatch Administrative Work of Central Area At Meeting Here.

Nearly thirty representatives of the central district of the American Lutheran church were meeting in executive session at the Lincoln hotel Tuesday, for discussion of questions involving administrative affairs.

Rev. C. August Decker of Sterling, Neb., was in charge of the meeting of the finance committee at which the 1935 budget of $52,000 was alloted to the 147 congregations making up the district, including the entire states of Nebraska, Colorado, Kansas and Oklahoma, and the western half of Iowa and the northwestern corner of Missouri.

Collections Improve.

Rev. J. Lehman of Otis, Kas., president of the district, in charge of the meeting of the executive board of home missions, announced that collections for the past year have been better than they were in 1933, and that while no new mission fields are being contemplated, all of the old fields show good signs of progress.

Rev. W. H. Hellman of Hebron was in charge of the meeting of the committee of Christian elementary education. He was assisted by Rev. John F. Streng of Burr, secretary of the committee. Problems of administration of Sunday schools and Sunday school institute programs were considered.

Other matters which they took up were: The Luther league of the district and its program of expansion; the parochial school, and the possibility of reinstating the same in every congregation in the district; and the influence of the Christian home.

Executive Meeting.

Rev. Lehman will preside over a meeting of the executive committee of the district late in the afternoon, when the group expects to discuss problems and technical questions involving administrative affairs of the district. Meetings of the missionary and finance committees will continue for evening sessions.

Announcement was made at the meetings of the findings at a joint meeting held Monday by boards of the American Lutheran church, the Norwegian Lutheran church of America, the Augustana synod and the United Danish Lutheran church, when it was decided to hold the second annual joint Bible conference camp at Columbus the third week of July. Rev. Hellman, in charge of the meeting, said that tentative arrangements have been made to secure Dr. Dean Miller of St. Paul and Dr. F. Gullixon of Springfield, Ill., as speakers.

Scott Denies He Took Postal Funds; Comes To Nebraska

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 20—(AP)—James E. Scott, former postmaster at Osmond, Neb., Monday furnished $1,000 bond before United States Commissioner Head here for his appearance in Nebraska Federal court to answer a charge of embezzling $105.75 while he was postmaster. Scott denied taking government funds when he was arraigned.

TODAY

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

President Roosevelt's speech, praising workers in the Tennessee valley for their efficiency, made one of the most important speeches that he, or any other president or ruler of a country, ever made.

He promises cheap power. Not all the plans to drive away depression could do one-tenth as much as really cheap power for all.

Nature gave man free air and free water, not much else is free. If science and wise government can add to free air and free water power unlimited, as nearly free as possible, that will mean another step towards the desired millennium.

Cheap power for farms, factories and homes, cheap power giving the light necessary for study, power that means conquest of nature and her hardships, will free men from slavery.

The French have a saying: On prend sou bonheur ou on le trouve. "Each takes his happiness where he finds it." Some seek money, some praise and glory, some care nothing for the present, yearning to be remembered in centuries to come

Prof. Phillip J. Darlington, in charge of insects in Harvard's museum of comparative zoology, climbed, at the risk of his neck, to the top of Mount La Hotte, most dangerous peak in Haiti.

He climbed and crawaled all the way up to look for one particular beetle, missing in the Harvard collection, and it was worth climbing for 26 days, cutting his way through brush, where native climbers would not follow. He found up there the beetle he wanted, other beetles that could not fly, many other queer insects.

To some that will seem a dull climb, but something has been added to men's knowledge. And 10,000 years hence, men will read about that solitary beetle climb up a dangerous mountain peak that have never heard of the charge of the light brigade, or even of Theodore Roosevelt, going up San Juan hill.

Hold Man in Wyoming As Suspect In Robbery Of City Mission Safe

Phil Bronson, wanted here for robbery of $56.80 from the City Mission safe November 7, is in custody at Cheyenne, Wyo., and has waived extradition to Nebraska, according to word received by Lincoln police Tuesday morning. Bronson was suspected of the robbery when he failed to appear at the Mission the day after the safe had been opened. He was sought in Cheyenne after officers learned he had friends there.

Thirty-four Nebraska counties have boys here for the course Nine are from Lancaster and five each from Burt and Cheyenne counties. Dr. T. H. Goodding is director of the course.

Gray Hair

Best Remedy is Made At Home

You can now make at home a better gray hair remedy than you can buy by following this simple recipe: To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it yourself at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained.

Barbo imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair, making it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

May License Haulers Of Rubbish in City

At the suggestion of Dr. M. F. Arnholt, superintendent of health, haulers of rubbish may be compelled to take out licenses as garbage handlers, it was indicated by the city council Monday. In a letter to the council, Dr. Arnholt complained that the haulers of rubbish are hauling garbage, "and there seems to be no way of stopping the practice under existing regulations. The letter was referred to the city engineer, attorney, and Dr. Arnholt for recommendation.

Discussion of the problem by the council revealed that the commissioners incline toward compliance with Dr. Arnholt's recommendation, but they would reduce the license and occupation tax from $10 to $5.

When the city clerk was instructed to advertise for bids on the water main to be built in Twelfth street from Washington to South street, Commissioner Doerr told the council that all work must be done by hand.

Each Slow Start May cost you 2 MILES OF GASOLINE

See the dramatic saving given by Phillips 66 high test. It starts motors faster . . . cold weather or warm. That's why it leaves more gas in every gallon for actual running.

HAVE you ever figured the high cost of starting with low test gasoline?

Even in warm weather, each start of the average car takes as much gasoline as driving it for two-fifths of a mile. On cold days, slow starts can easily consume two miles of gasoline!

This waste of mileage is a waste of your money. And the waste is worst in Winter. The starter whirrs. The battery weakens. Up go your temper, temperature, and upkeep.

What a difference with high test Phillips 66! Your motor starts with split-second speed. Warms up fast. Gets going without bucking. You get maximum power on a minimum amount of motor fuel. Zippier pick-up. And the silent action and anti-knock of genuine Lead Tetraethyl.

This premium performance costs you nothing extra. Yet it is preserved and guaranteed by the pioneer Phillips process of CONTROLLED VOLATILITY. Phillips originated this custom-tailoring of gasoline to match your weather and whereabouts. We did it first . . . we have been doing it longer . . . obviously we can do it better.

Why not check up today? See if you aren't missing extra miles on every gallon, extra pleasure in motoring! One trial tankful of gas, at any Orange and Black 66 Shield, is Phillips finest advertisement.

Marian Gordon

by JEANNE BOWMAN

SYNOPSIS: Marian Casad knows that McSwain, the contractor for whom her husband, Lon Casad, is working is a crook. But Lon refuses to believe her; now Lon has gone out for a night with "the boys," has returned home drugged, and with $200 in his pocket instead of the $100 his paycheck should have called for. McSwain suddenly arrives at the Casad house, and accuses Lon of having raised the check. McSwain says Lon committed the crime while drunk.

Chapter 37.

PLAN NEEDED.

"No, Mr. McSwain," Lon answered. "I don't admit anything. I don't know, that is the whole truth."

"Then you'd better find out," the man retorted. He stood for a moment. "I'll see you in the morning. You'll come to work at the usual time and say nothing to anyone of this, understand?"

"It isn't a thing I'd want to discuss," Lon answered.

McSwain turned to go, then turned back to Marian and she read triumph in his face. "And you talked about honesty to me," he said and was gone.

Lon locked the door behind him, came into the room, sank into a chair, head in his hands. Marian waited a few moments, then knelt down before him. "Lon, dear, don't feel that way; you didn't do it."

"I'm afraid I did. Ian," he whispered. "I can't . . . can't remember. I could have done anything at a time like that . . . drunk."

"But, Lon, you weren't. I know it. I'd swear to it. Didn't Doctor Steele tell you?"

"That I'd been drugged? Yes, he did, but he's mistaken. Those boys take their liquids pretty potent and I'm not used to it, I hadn't eaten; it was late. I'd worked pretty hard and it went to my head."

"But, Lon, a drunken person follows his natural inclinations. There's nothing about you that would impel you to do a think like that."

"I don't know about that, either, Ian," he answered, reaching for her hands and holding them in a tight grip. "I've wanted awfully to make you see I could hold down a mansized job, and make you see you were wrong. Maybe some place deep down in my subconscious mind I figured that bringing home a lot of money would do it."

"Lon, dear, I've never doubted your ability. It wasn't that; it was just mistrust of McSwain. Lon, I wouldn't put it past McSwain to have had those men drug you, then change checks on you . . . no, don't protest; try now to remember the pay check as you received it from the paymaster Saturday."

Lon's head came up. "I do remember," he said suddenly. "Why, of course, I do. McSwain had said something about a raise and I looked to see, but it was the straight one hundred. I figured he'd been called out of town and hadn't notified the office. Ian, that proves it—"

"No it doesn't Lon, let's jump into the car and drive down to see

"And you talked honesty to me," McSwain sneered.

Murphy. He'll be able to help us better than anyone else."

Half an hour later they were at the gas station. They waited until Murphy finished serving a customer, then called him to the car and questioned him.

"Let's see now," Murphy was duly impressed by their earnestness, "let's see . . . you drove up. You were at the wheel. I thought you acted sort of queer because you just missed the pumps and you're usually pretty careful and sure.

"You told me to fill her up, and while I was doing that, you and the two men went inside the station, so as you would have somethin' solid to endorse your checks on."

"You didn't happen to look in while the endorsing was going on, did you?" inquired Marian eagerly.

"No . . . no, not exactly, seems now I do remember seeing the three of them in sort of a huddle, yes, believe they were."

"And then," prompted Ian.

"Then I got through with the car and went in and I asked them all to step outside so's I could get into the safe without no one lookin' no . . . to be honest Mrs. Casad I didn't like the looks of those men . . . and the three checks you see I couldn't pay out of the till, cause they came to a neat amount."

"How . . . how much was mine for?" asked Lon.

"For two hundred dollars," answered Murphy promptly, "remember thinkin' it was a right smart bit of wage."

"Two hundred dollars," murmured Marian. She looked at Lon, his face was grey.

After he had locked the garage and entered the house he went to the divan and sat down—"Well Ian, that's that."

"That's what?" she asked.

"I did it. I raised the check . . . When I think of what that's going to mean . . ." his voice broke and his head went down between his hands, arms propped on his knees.

"Lon, listen; listen Lon, don't feel that way, you did not raise that check, nothing . . . no amount of circumstantial evidence, can make me believe it."

"Yes, but the courts won't be as prejudiced as you are. How can they help believing it when I do?" he asked in a strained voice.

Marian couldn't answer. Murphy's testimony alone would prove his guilt. He had been drinking. He came in, cashed his check, disappeared to return incapable of driving his own car.

"Let's not worry about the courts, if you return the money to McSwain he'll have no reason for prosecution. I'm going to fix you a hot malted milk and then you go to bed and try to sleep. You're going to need strength tomorrow morning and you must have some rest. You're still weak from Saturday night."

He submitted to her ministrations in the docile manner of a sick child, allowed her to tuck him into bed. Then, as she sat on the edge of the bed stroking his head, he relaxed, responding unknowingly to the sedative she had slipped into the milk.

Satisfied he was asleep, Marian took Hero and went to the hill. Stars scintillated over head as though they had been washed and polished by the week end storm. Diablo reared its placid bulk against the mosaic pattern they made in the night sky.

There was an answer to Lon's trouble. Marian knew it . . . perhaps if she could brush the cobwebs of worry from her mind and think clearly it would come to her. She must separate Lon from herself in her mind.

$2,000 Judgment Upon Insurance Affirmed; Auditor's Claim Void

The Supreme court affirmed a judgment of $2,000 obtained by Mrs. Augusta Baumgart, Omaha, against the Woodmen of the World on a life insurance policy on the life of her husband, Carl Baumgart, who died in March, 1932. In this case, the court held that an automatic premium payment clause in the policy kept it in force during a period of nonpayment of dues by the insured.

V. J. LeBarron, Lincoln auditor, finally lost her suit to collect a claim of $495 against the city of Harvard for a city audit, the Supreme court affirming a District court judgment that the claim was void because no specific appropriation was made for the audit expense. The high court several months ago reversed and remanded the case for further proceedings, the present appeal bing the auditor's second appeal.

Judgment For Woman Who Fell Down Neligh Store Steps Affirmed

A judgment for $2,500 obtained by Etta Rogers in Antelope county district court against the J. C. Penney Co. for injuries suffered in a fall in the company's store at Neligh was affirmed Tuesday by the supreme court. The court held that storekeepers are not insurers against accidents to customers, but must exercise reasonable care to keep premises reasonably safe for them. The plaintiff contended she fell down a stairway when, while looking at dresses on a rack, the rack hid the stairway from view.

The court affirmed a judgment obtained by John Mackprang, Cedar Bluffs, against the National Casualty Co., in a suit on a health insurance policy. The policy provided for indemnity for 100 weeks for an illness actually confining the insured within the house continuously, and indemnity for 10 weeks for a non-confining illness.

The company contended that one occasion on which Mackprang was taken downtown during his illness to assist in clearing up affairs in a failed bank and once in connection with his duties as village treasurer rendered his illness non-confining, and tendered him a check for ten weeks' indemnity. A trial without a jury resulted in a verdict for Mackprang covering the full term of his disability.

Sheep Feeding In State Cut In Half

Shortage and High Price Feed Point To Continuation Restricted Production.

Sheep on feed in Nebraska November 1 were estimated at about 50 per cent of the number a year ago by E. V. Jones, assistant state and federal agricultural statistician, Tuesday. He said operations this season are expected to continue at a sharply reduced level compared with last year.

The shortage of feed is a restrictive influence and extensive operations are unwarranted in view of present high feed prices Jones said. Some areas will have to market short-fed lambs around the first of the year because of insufficient feed to finish the animals, he believes.

Movement of feeder and stocker sheep into the state during the three-month period, July-September, was 50 per cent of a year ago, and although October shipments were larger than the preceding three months and larger than October, 1933, the four-month total was smaller than last year.

Shipments of sheep and lambs to cornbelt states this year were larger than last.

Opening Statements Made In Frahm Murder Trial; West Nebraska Agriculturists Show Optimism

STATE TO CALL MANY TO STAND

Fifty Witnesses to Give Testimony For Prosecution.

OSHKOSH, Neb., Nov. 20—(AP)—The state today was ready to begin its parade of fifty witnesses in the first degree murder trial of Fred Frahm of Sidney as attorneys made opening statements to a District court jury here.

Frahm, charged with slaying his brother, John, in Garden county six years ago, paid close attention to the attorney's statements and did not appear to be nervous.

All witnesses were barred from the courtroom as the jury of eleven farmers and two laborers listened to statements of what the prosecution and defense hope to prove. An alternate juror was chosen to listen to all testimony and serve in case another juror should be disqualified or become ill. The jurymen have been guarded closely.

County Attorney E. J. Nenstiel had not indicated whether he would ask the death penalty.

The prosecution will attempt to prove that Fred Frahm murdered his brother John, oil operator of Glendale, Ariz., and buried the body in a shallow grave.

The cost is a little more than a single help. But your druggist is authorized to guarantee it so it costs nothing if it fails to bring you quick relief. Coughs are danger signals. For safety's sake, deal with them in the best way known.—Advertisement.

CODE RULES FOR SMALLER TOWNS

Advisory Committee Sends New Recommendations to Washington.

OMAHA, Nov. 20—(AP—Recommendations of the Nebraska code authority advisory committee for simplifying and improving code administration in the state, drafted at an organization meeting of the newly appointed committee Monday, were forwarded to Washington Tuesday.

The committee proposes grocers and distributors in towns of 2,500 population or under, a class that comprises two thirds of the trade in the state, be placed under minimum price restrictions, assessed for code administration, and left free from hour and wage regulations. The class now is exempt from price control and administration assessment.

Other recommendations of the committee, which elected Phil Punton of Lincoln permanent chairman, include:

Coordination of various industries and trade groups under one office, with establishment of voluntary code authorities in towns where the existence is justified.

Delegation to the state NRA offices of the formation of area agreements as provided under the construction industry code.

Association of code authorities striving for simplification and the collection of code assessments by local or state authority rather than by the national authority.

The recommendations were sent to Robert K. Straus, special representative of the national industrial board, at whose suggestion the advisory committee was appointed here last week by Nebraska code members.

SAY ROBBERIES ARE ADMITTED

Man Said To Have Confessed Seventeen Omaha Holdups.

SHERIDAN, Wyo., Nov. 20—(AP)—Nebraska peace officers are on their way back to Omaha with William E. Maxwell, who they said confessed participating in 12 robberies in Omaha and a gun battle at Nevada, Mo., in which an officer was killed.

Detective Sergeant Rogers of Omaha and Chief of Detectives Bangs of Council Bluffs disclosed that Maxwell had dictated a formal statement.

Maxwell said in his statement, the officers added, that he and two other men after "pulling a job" in Omaha, "went to Nevada, Mo., and got into a gun battle with the officers there. I shot approximately eight times," his confession read, "and I was shot once."

Officers here said Maxwell's body bore the scars of 13 buckshot wounds in his back and a wound in his abdomen, apparently inflicted by a spent bullet.

Maxwell is specifically charged with having staged a $1,200 grocery store holdup in Omaha. He waived extradition.

Two Officers Shot.

NEVADA, Mo., Nov. 20—(AP)—Dewey Routh, prosecuting attorney, said that a man "operating under the name of Maxwell" was sought in the wounding of a sheriff and a deputy sheriff here last March.

Routh said the man and two companions shot and wounded Sheriff Dutton and Deputy Sheriff Stonum on a street here when the officers approached them in a car to question them.

In an exchange of shots the two companions of Maxwell were shot and captured. Maxwell's two companions, who gave their names as Lee Swick and Roy Sager, were given penitentiary sentences of 12 years.

INVESTIGATING FIRE IN OMAHA

Blaze In Apartment House Is Preceded By Explosion.

OMAHA, Nov. 20—(AP)—An investigation of a reported explosion, followed by fire that nearly destroyed a four apartment building here at 2:30 a. m. Tuesday has been launched by fire inspectors. Neighbors told firemen they were awakened by a loud blast and a flash of flame. Firemen fought the blaze for two hours before it was extinguished.

Tony Distefano and his wife were the only occupants of the apartment building. Distefano, the owner, and his wife were away when the fire broke out.

After a preliminary examination, fire Inspector Saltta and members of the police bombing squad said they had found evidence of an inflammable liquid on the floor and walls.

Hear Addresses by Members of Ag College Faculty.

HARRISBURG, Neb., Nov. 19—(AP)—Optimism in the future of agriculture in western Nebraska was radiated here Monday by farmers and farm wives who attended the first session of the 1934-35 Organized agriculture meetings in the state.

P. H. Stewart of the Nebraska agricultural college advised early purchase of seed because of the unprecedented shortage. He added, however, the situation is not as acute in the panhandle district as in other parts of Nebraska.

Clayton W. Watkins, Nebraska director of the federal shelterbelt project, explained the huge tree planting venture as an attempt to curb soil eroding winds and not to "manufacture rain."

Possibility that the federal cattle buying program may be of future benefit to the state if farmers rebuild their herds with better breeding stock was stressed by W. W. Derrick, also of the agricultural college.

A woman's session was addressed by Thomas P. Anderson, Colorado Y. M. C. A. worker, who urged a more sympathetic attitude toward the problems of modern youth.

HAWAII TEACHER MAY COME HERE

Exchange Between Two Systems Proposed To Board.

Vocational Classes To Be Established At Hayward.

Possibility of a teacher exchange between the Lincoln school system and the schools of Hawaii considered by the board of education Tuesday morning. The matter was referred to Supt. M. C. Lefler for further investigation and recommendation to the board.

Harvey L. Freeland, former Nebraskan and present director of national education in the Hawaiian island, broached the plan to Superintendent Lefler, who presented the matter to the board. The plan would provide for one outstanding teacher of the Lincoln system being sent to teach in the Hawaiian schools in exchange for an outstanding teacher from those schools coming here to teach.

The person sent from the islands would probably be a Japanese or oriental teacher, Lefler said. Freeland recommended that the exchange be made in the lower grades, but the board felt that, if done, it should be in the junior high school. No expense would be incurred by the school district.

Vocational Classes.

The board voted to organize a special program of vocational classes at Hayward school with FERA educational funds which have been increased from $700 to $1,200 a month for Lincoln. The classes, held between 7 and 9 o'clock on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, will continue until March 30, 1935, a period of 16 weeks. The board will supply ten typewriters.

Arthur Dobson and Purchasing Agent Park, were appointed a committee with power to act on the matter of directory printing. At the last meeting the board awarded the contract for the directories to the Acme Printing company at $1.98 a page. Tuesday the board was informed that the local code authority for the printing industry would not accept the figure as fair.

As a result the Acme company and also the Cornhusker-Commercial Printing company withdrew their bids and asked leave to substitute bids of $2.38 a page, which was the contract figure of the American Printing company a year ago. The purchasing agent recommended that the contract be awarded to the Acme company at its new figure, but the board demurred, holding that the American company as the third bidder was entitled to the contract, at the $2.38 figure. The committee was appointed to investigate and act.

Further Proceeding.

Other actions of the board:

Approved purchase of six dozen tank suits from the Lawlor Sporting Goods company at $16.20 a dozen.

Approved applications of Eugene Geschwender, Frances Jane Ingram, Bobby Fouts and Lois Jeanne Guthmiller for free school tuition.

Learned from Secretary J. G. Ludlam that at the semi-annual tobacco license canvass of the city only one dealer did not have a license.

Accepted settlment of $10 from A. N. Wickham for damage to school district property in an accident.

Approved purchase of 15,200 purchase order forms from the Standard Register company at $304.45.

Approved the request of a Mr. Santi of Council Bluffs to refinish two plaster plaques in Capitol school

Learned that on October 31, 1934, the board had bonds outstanding in the amount of $3,924,000.

Approved the following elections: Annie M. T. Cogil as director adult education at Hayward school at $6 a week; Gerald Leeson, J Paul Shively, Philip Ehrenhard and Ed Beechler Smith-Hughes instructors at $1 50 an hour, Andrew Kneisler as a book room employe at 30 cents an hour.

Approved the following persons as FERA employes of the school system, paid by FERA funds. Miss Whreida J. Wrye, Miss Lydia Hermann Bessie F. Sherman, Mrs. James D. Elliott, Miss Blanche Graham Mrs. Maude Ockerman, Eleanor Delight Garten, Harlan G. Easton, Richard L. Hall Marjorie Horst and Richard Cockburn.

SAYS DANGER OF WAR IS GREATER

Rev. Leslie R. Smith Warns Women Work To Be Done.

"There is more danger of war today than there has been in any other period of human history," Rev. Leslie R. Smith told 150 members of the Lincoln Council of Federated Church Women at Vine Congregational church Tuesday afternoon. "The Versailles treaty stirred up more difficulty than it settled. Nationalism is rampant. These conditions are regularly aggravated by an unrest that is crying for a change at any price," he said.

"Despite this we have to be sane in our point of view toward war. We cannot usher in the idea by passing a law. A practical application of our ideal must depend upon the stage of education of the people concerned. We found this true in prohibition. We must recognize the same thing with regard to war," he declared.

He said further that it is a program in which women must find their place, for it is the home through which such education must be carried on—teaching the moral evils of war, the economic defeatism and the utter futility of it.

Mrs. Martin Douglas, chairman of the department of international relations, was in charge of the afternoon session, which followed a noon luncheon. Oscar Bennettt, accompanied by Mrs. Bennett, sang "The Time for Making Songs Has Come," and Felman's arrangement of Kipling's "Boots."

Mrs. Richard Dawson conducted the devotional service at the afternoon meeting, at which Mrs. Elizabeth McPherson Hunt sang. Mrs. Ray E. Hunt, president of the group, was in charge of the morning session, at which routine business was transacted.

Rev. H. H. Marsden Named Chaplain For National Guard Unit

One o fthe chaplainship vanancies existing in the Nebraska national guard has been filled by the appointment of Rev. H. H. Marsden, pastor of Holy Trinity Episcopal church, Lincoln, to that post in the 110th medical regiment, with headquarters and personnel here.

He succeeds Chaplain Jack Leonard, Lincoln, resigned, and will take the rank of captain.

No selection has been made as yet for chaplain of the 134th infantry regiment in place of the late Maj. Harold C. Capsey of Wayne. There are four applicants, all ministers now active in the pulpit, who served as army chaplains during the world war. Col. R. G. Douglas of the infantry organization said it will be hard to choose among these men, all of them being well qualified to fill the position.

Capt. Floyd Painter of Omaha has been named as dental officer for the 134th infantry, as successor to Capt. Achenbach of Nebraska City, resigned.

NEBRASKA ASKS $280,000 MORE DECEMBER AID

Haynes Requests Total $1,661,646; Almost Every Item Up.

Because of mounting needs among the unemployed and destitute population at this time of year, the national relief administration is being asked by its state administrator, Rowland Haynes, for an increase of about $280,000 in the December allotment for relief purposes in Nebraska. Mr. Haynes is on his way to Washington to present his budget for next month in person and to confer with his official superiors as to how the work of aiding the needy shall be carried on.

The total sum requested is $1,661,646, as against $1,384,200 allowed to Nebraska in November. The estimated amount for general relief next month is $1,052,000, in comparison with $878,000 provided this month.

Haynes also asks $350,000 more for drouth relief, which includes $200,000 intended to set up a revolving fund for purchasing feed for live stock. Only $50,000 was granted from Washington for drouth relief in November, but a considerable balance left over from the preceding period was available to eke out that amount.

A big cut is made in the item for slaughtering cattle and processing the meat, from $262,000 in November to $48,000 for December. These activities are being tapered off and will probably cease altogether by January 1.

Anticipating a substantially larger number of transient cases to be cared for as winter opens up, Haynes is making a requisition of $57,833 under that heading, which is $17,000 more than the November allowance.

Remaining items in his requested schedule are $111,613 for rural rehabilitation, $22,700 for emergency education, and $19,500 for student aid—all about the same as before.

Work Wasted; Ballots In Stolen Nebraskan Copies Not to Count

The person, or persons, who stole 1,500 copies of The Daily Nebraskan Monday from the campus office of the student daily took a triple blow Tuesday.

1. The campus officer, L. C. Regler, was requested to make an investigation.

2. The editor of The Nebraskan, Burton Marvin, excoriated the "criminals."

3. The votes in the Sunday issue of the paper for the five best dressed girls on the University of Nebraska campus will be outlawed and will not be counted in the final results.

Thus the enterprising person, or persons, who walked off with the papers, containing some 1,500,000 votes to be filled in, find themselves in an annoying situation. No votes—only papers.

Sloan New Officer For Memorial Park

W. H. Sloan, until recently associated with the Allegheny county Memorial Park cemetery association at Pittsburgh, Pa., as sales manager, has moved to Lincoln, where he is now sales manager of the Lincoln Memorial Park cemetery association, according to an announcement made Tuesday.

Mr. Sloan had been connected with the Pittsburgh organization for the past eight years, and for a time was in charge of all advertising of the company.

Thanksgiving Day Proclamation Is Issued By Bryan

In his Thanksgiving proclamation issued Tuesday, Governor Bryan voices these thoughts:

"Thursday, November 29, has been set aside as Thanksgiving day by the proclamation of our president as well as by our annual custom and the statutes of our state.

"Our problems have loomed so large in the past year that the very human tendency to worry about their solution and overlook our blessings has been evident. However, we can be thankful that our problems are not of resources or production but rather those of distribution and adjustment. We can be thankful, too, for the spirit of courage and determination with which these problems are being attacked and for the progress being made toward solution of them.

"Our people have been endowed with high ideals of liberty, justice and equality. And we have had implanted in us worthy desires for knowledge, happy homes and economic security. These ideals with a growing recognition of our inter-dependence and the obligation of the storing and able to the weak and aged, taken altogether, justify our faith in the future of our country.

"Now, therefore, I, do hereby, proclaim Thursday, November 29 as a day of sincere thanksgiving to Almighty God for his blessings to us and urge that in that spirit of thankfulness we re-dedicate ourselves to such service as will multiply those blessings for posterity."

TAKE AN AIRPLANE TRIP AND LEARN A THRILLING COFFEE SECRET!

WHY THIS RARE MOUNTAIN COFFEE GIVES YOU RICHER TANG AND FLAVOR

—Really DIFFERENT from Any Other Coffee Known!—

THERE'S no mystery about coffee. There are many grades of coffee just as there are many grades of silverware. The cheaper coffee comes from the lowlands. And the richer-flavored coffees come from high up in the mountains.

Because Folger's is real mountain coffee—it is deliciously different from the lowland coffees used in ordinary brands. Folger's is grown on tiny plantations high up in the mountains—where clear, bright sunshine, steaming tropical rains, and an odd type of volcanic soil combine to give coffee a rare winy tang and extra rich flavor that makes ordinary coffee taste thin and flat by comparison.

Experts know this. And they'll tell you there's no way of roasting or packaging coffee that can bring out flavor that nature didn't put there in the first place! Delicious tang and flavor has to be grown in—as it is in Folger's!

It may be news to you—but you can easily afford to serve this finer coffee in your home. For even though you may pay a few pennies more per pound for Folger's—it's so much richer in flavor that you can use ¼th less! That means you get more cups—and after all, that's the way to figure a coffee's cost—by its price per cup.

Folger's fresh mountain flavor is especially appealing to men! This coffee is served in the dining cars of 10 great railroads; in many of the finest hotels and clubs where men's tastes are catered to! Order Folger's for your home today!

THE DAWES LOAN.

PROBABLY no single step taken during the Hoover administration brought more criticism to the former president than the loan made the bank of which former Vice President Charles G. Dawes was the head. Its echoes were heard constantly during the national campaign of 1932. So savage was the criticism that Mr. Hoover himself replied to it with great feeling during the course of his campaign addresses.

And as a result, the Dawes loan, strangely enough, came to symbolize the policy, taken as a whole, which tumbled Ex-President Hoover from his pedestal as a national idol to the position of one of the most unpopular men who ever occupied the White House. It typified the Hoover philosophy of national recovery. In his own defense, the former president pointed out that an institution as large as the old Dawes bank, now in the process of liquidation, could not be permitted to sink without inflicting untold hardship and suffering upon thousands and thousands of innocent depositors. The individual might go under, and while that was an isolated tragedy, a great business institution affected the lives of a great number of people, with unsettlement of business and demoralization. And so the common complaint arose that the government could lend millions to an immense banking institution, but it could not utilize tax funds for the purpose of saving the homes and the farms of millions of people, and it could not employ governmental revenues to feed, shelter, and clothe hapless unemployed.

All of this comes back into the spotlight with the announcement that suit has been filed against General Dawes and 4,000 stockholders of the Central Republic Trust company, (formerly known as the Central Republic Bank and Trust company) for 14 million dollars, claimed to be in default and due the government. And with the filing of the suit, much which had been mere conjecture and street gossip, takes formal form in the fashion of a court petition.

It is set forth that the Reconstruction Finance corporation negotiated two loans—the first for 30 millions and the second for 50 millions. Of this amount, it is claimed that 60 millions still is owing, the specific sum of $7,022,000 being due on a loan dated June 29, 1932, and 52 millions on a second loan dated October 6, 1932.

The unfortunate political aspect of the Dawes loan can be attributed to the fact it was negotiated shortly after General Dawes had retired as chairman of the RFC. Those were days of great stress. They were weeks when staggering losses were being suffered, when individuals by the millions and institutions were fighting desperately to keep their heads above water. The net result was to make it possible for those who wanted to speak caustically of the transaction to say that General Dawes occupied a preferential position, because of his political prominence. It is only fair to say that nothing of the sort was involved. The only question in reality was the effect of a failure as big as would have resulted had the bank been compelled to close its doors. instead of adopting the policy of gradual liquidation, on banking and on business generally. Mr. Dawes insisted on a loan of sufficient size to pay the depositors in full or the only other recourse was to suspend the business.

The whole episode projects the issue of national welfare security in splendid fashion. In what manner is national prosperity best served? What is the path to economic strength? Mr. Roosevelt has taken the other road toward recovery. It is the one which has the full approval of the American people.

In the long run. it is unlikely that the government will suffer serious loss through the Dawes loan. The collateral largely is real estate. Some years may be required for final liquidation, but in the end a returne of prosperous conditions and of higher values will reimburse the Reconstruction Finance corporation for its advances.

A ROYAL CUPID.

SOCIETY gossip from Europe says that the Prince of Wales has turned match-maker, and has entered into competition with Princess Ingeborg of Sweden to find a husband for Princess Juliana, the future queen of the Netherlands.

The prince is a confirmed bachelor, and has so far dodged Cupid's darts. He has met Princess Juliana many times and apparently was fascinated by her for he has written to his brother, the Duke of Gloucester, who is now in Australia, that Juliana is a "most charming, intelligent, and amusing young woman."

Juliana is one of the new princesses who would be eligible to marry the Prince of Wales. The question therefore, of "Why don't you speak for yourself, Eddie?" instead of brother Henry would be a logical one were it not for the prospect of being merely prince consort to the Dutch queen, which would amount to "demotion" for the future king of Great Britain.

Rumor, however, has for months closely linked Juliana with Prince Charles, nephew of the king of Sweden and son of Princess Ingeborg, who is credited with being one of Europe's most successful marriage arrangers. Her daughter, Astrid, is queen of the Belgians, and her two other daughters married princes of Norway and Denmark.

The race, if it is that, for Juliana's heart has not yet reached the stage where it is possible to lay any bets on the probable winner, but when and if it does ours is on the Prince of Wales' brother. It is said of Eddie that he would make a first class salesman if he had to earn a living, and good salesmanship goes a long way in romance.

ALICE IN WONDERLAND.

THE death of Mrs. Alice Hargreaves, the original principal character in Lewis Carroll's fantasy on childish adventure, as embodied in "Alice in Wonderland," revives the memories of that youthful delight.

But not all fantasy finds its way into books or even into written form. Thousands of grown men and women today, looking back upon their childhood, can recall when a patient mother or a father took them upon her or his knee and recounted golden tales of glowing adventure.

This story came from the lips of Dan V. Stephens of Fremont, a grand Nebraskan, a fine banker, and a solid and substantial business man. Dan and his little grandson, Bobby, were wandering in the woods surrounding Mr. Stephens' beloved Cottonwoods, when the little chap, upon spotting a giant locust tree, popped this question:

"Grandad, why does the locust tree have spines?"

And there begins a tale, for Dan invited his grandson to seat himself on a fallen log beside him, and he would explain. It seems that in the long ago, locust trees did not have long sharp punishing thorns. One day a chattering bluejay perched in its branches and the burden of its scolding was directed against the sly squirrels which robbed the blue jay's nest of its eggs. And then the locust spoke of its troubles. It too had experienced difficulty in producing the long bean pods, from which the seed dropped in the brown and dreary days of fall. to furnish new locust trees. The moths and the butterflies, perennial enemies of the flowers of the locust, destroyed them. And so the bargain was struck. The bluejay pledged the locust what he would drive away the insects and in turn the locust pledged the bluejay he would grow spines to protect the nests from thievery of the squirrels.

And so the story ended—very excellently, Dan believed, until he turned to the lad beside him and asked Bobby what he thought about it.

"Well, gramps," Bobby replied, "it might be true and then again it might not."

What would life be without its flights of imagination! Millions of youngsters have responded to the adventuring after the white rabbit into a fantastic world of nonsense, and many millions more have those precious recollections of childhood when parents drew upon their own ingenuity to paint a beautiful world of daring deeds, magnificent scenery, and splendid virtues.

ASKING TOO MUCH.

UNLESS the state of Nebraska is prepared to relieve all counties of their share of the cost of constructing state aid bridges, the proposal being agitated at Louisville to have the state take over the whole cost of the Platte river structure at that place and open it up as a free crossing can hardly be given favorable consideration.

The law provides that the state shall pay half the outlay to build bridges 175 feet or more in length, the other half to be borne by the county or counties directly benefited in each instance. Under this statute nearly half a hundred bridges have been built in various parts of Nebraska. There is still a long waiting list of applications, as available funds have not been sufficient to take care of all of them.

In the case of Louisville, the state some years ago entered into a joint compact with Cass and Sarpy counties whereby it agreed to pay half the cost of the span already constructed under local auspices. In lieu of the other half, which was a legal obligation of the two counties, it was stipulated that tolls should be collected until the revenue therefrom was sufficient to take care of the remainder.

The two counties had asked for this arrangement rather than provide the money from their own treasuries to discharge their portion of the indebtedness. The state went out of its way to accommodate them by paying its half in advance and allowing the counties to raise the money for their shares through what amounted to a special tax levied upon traffic crossing the bridge.

If the toll receipts have proved disappointing and if people wishing to get across the Platte river go some other way in order to avoid the charge made at Louisville, that is not the state's fault. Correction of such a situation is the problem of the county boards and not of the state government, which has already been more than generous in its treatment of the Louisville bridge project. Because a special concession was made in the first instance affords no ground for asking the state to assume the whole financing burden.

There might possibly be some justification for the legislature's granting permission to Cass and Sarpy counties to use part of their gasoline tax money for the squaring up of accounts on the Platte river structure, should they see fit to do so instead of raising the money in some other way.

But other counties would have good ground for complaint if a policy of letting certain ones eat their cake and keep it, too, were followed.

NO COMPLAINTS.

IT WILL take more than a few days of cloudy, rainy, and misty weather to inspire Nebraskans to toss their hands in the air and cry "Enough." Each spell of precipitation meets with approval. The lessons painfully acquired last spring and summer will remain for a long time.

But the contrast between the fall of 1933 and 1934 in all but the western and the northwestern portions of the state is so clearly etched that it will not be overlooked. A year ago, Nebraska entered the winter with the dryest of falls. The frequent rains which started in September and have continued in the eastern and southern half of the state have changed conditions completely. There still remains a serious deficiency in moisture, which can be made up only through exceptional rainfall during the winter.

In the western counties and in many of the northern counties, the problem still remains one of deep concern.

A Montana family eked out an existence for 24 years on a dry land farm. Geologists seeking sand for the Fort Peck dam found a million cubic yards of it on the farm, and the widow and nine children will realize $100,000 in the next five years from contracts.

To smother that suicide impulse, put a geranium on the window sill. A college botanist says persons who take their lives have lost that saving sense of the beauty of life.

QUESTION.

Harrisburg, Pa.

Will you suggest one or two recent books which will be helpful for religious guidance?

ANSWER.

Get Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin's "What Men Are Asking," a volume replete with wise counsel and lucid expositions, useful alike for laymen and clergy men Here you have a model work of its kind, containing able, comprehensive and sympathetic answers to just such questions as you raise in the field of religious experience.

President Coffin's standing as a scholar is assured. But he is more than that—in fact, nothing less than a trustworthy guide familiar with the issues he discusses in such a way as to obtain for religion a more adequate and central setting, and for human life that dignity and value for which it was created and redeemed. I commend his book to your attention.

As a second choice read "The Commonplace Prodigal," by Allan Knight Chalmers, the brilliant young pastor of Broadway Tabernacle, New York City. After the profound experience of being in the front trenches during the World war, Dr. Chalmers lost his faith in God and pretty much everything else besides. He had to rebuild his life and beliefs from the ground up, and he was wise enough to look for the material in the history he had been trained to teach. What he discovered there he relates in his book, and it has the freshness and appeal of a really vital document.

It is also a summons to the youth of both sexes who are wasting their gifts and opportunities in commonplace living. The author's chief concern is that his younger comrades in the grim struggle shall know themselves as children of God, as well as of men. He pleads eagerly that those who are rapidly passing into maturity shall practice verified methods by which they can enjoy the conscious guidance of their Eternal Father.

QUESTION.

Glen Falls, N. Y.

As a Jew I should be glad to know what Palestine offers to the persecuted men and women of my race.

ANSWER.

Palestine, say the Zionists, must be a bi-racial country like South Africa, and the two nationalities of Jews and Arabs should have an equal voice in its direction, but not according to their ratios of population, for the 250,000 Jews represent as important material interests as do the 800,000 Arabs. Since the World war the Jewish population has increased from 80,000 to the above mentioned figures. Its leaders in finance and industry have poured money into its enterprises, and the amazing development of agriculture and orchard culture is largely due to their efforts.

The Zionists further claim that the Jewish need for a national home is more pressing than ever. In Poland alone 100,000 Jews wait for permits to enter the land of their fathers. Anti-semitism is not only rife in Germany but in other Continental countries of Europe, and since Hitlerism launched its disastrous policy the demand for a place of refuge has become extremely urgent. Transjordania is still unoccupied, and what Jewish thrift and industry have done elsewhere can be duplicated in that large territory. So long as there is work for all, the Arabs have no ground for complaint. Such, in brief, is the Jewish case, and it is a very strong one.

The Arabs reply that the idea of a Jewish state in Palestine is impossible and threaten to resist its establishment to the death. They maintain that their prolonged residence there gives them prior rights to consideration and bitterly reproach the British government for ignoring those rights. One English statesman suggests a legislative council be set up forthwith in Palestine, the final control to be reserved to the High Commissioner. This, he argues, would gradually enable the Jews and Arabs to meet together as members of a Palestinian state neither exclusively Jewish nor exclusively Arabian, and it would also teach the population the rudiments of self-government. Great Britain should give a formal undertaking to both factions that thier respective claims will receive due regard.

Meanwhile, he declares that Jewish immigration must be treated with sympathy, and every effort made to encourage it not only in Palestine but in other parts of the British Empire where the Jew has always become a useful and loyal member of the community. The problem is extremely complex, but nothing is to be gained by shirking its difficulties. These should be boldly faced and the world informed of the progress of their removal.

QUESTION.

Raleigh, N. C.

I am 36 and married a widower, holding down my job as a stenographer and doing my best to train his seven-year-old daughter in the right way. But I can't say I'm happy. He treats me more like a daughter than a wife. Also he tends to neglect his job and I'm afraid he'll lose it.

What would you suggest my doing?

ANSWER.

Good marriage demands love on both sides. It prospers only through united esteem and affection. Its sacrifices are its joys, because each partner's chief delight is to minister to the necessities of the other. But if love is absent and a widower marries a woman for the sake of getting a housekeeper who will increase the family income and act as a mother to his child, the young wife is in for a disillusioning experience. You were old enough, however, when you married to have understood that marriage is life's most serious undertaking. Yet so far as I can learn you have acted as though it were of secondary importance.

Did you deeply feel that your future husband was absolutely essential to your peace and happiness? Were you prepared to take him for himself alone and quite apart from his financial means? If not, your marriage lacks the spiritual basis which sanctifies and stabilizes the union of husband and wife. If the foregoing questions could be honestly faced at the start not a few proposed marriages would never be contracted, and countless others would be spared the squabbling that often succeeds the wedding bells. Is it not true that violent disagreements frequently arise between couples who never suspected the existence of their causes till it was too late to thresh them out? Rest assured that single blessedness is better than such marital misery.

THE OLD-FASHIONED MATCH.

Last night while in the kitchen something strange occurred to me.
"Just light the stove," said Nellie, "and I'll make a cup of tea."
On the shelf were wooden matches, in the style of long ago,
The only kind my father was allowed to live to know.
And as within my fingers I took up that wooden peg
I thought of him and struck it on my right side trouser leg.

She gasped to see me standing with my right foot in the air
Just striking parlor matches on the trousers that I wear;
And she called me downright foolish but of course she didn't know
That I'd changed that very minute to the boy of long ago
Who had watched his father do it and was hoping when he grew
'Twas a little trick which men did he would also learn to do.

Then we had no patent lighters and no fancy matches small,
We struck them 'neath the table or we scratched them on the wall,
We'd not come to pushing buttons to illuminate the night,
We had queer old-fashioned gas jets which somebody had to light
But my father, fearing danger still refused me when I'd beg
To let me see if I could light a match upon my leg.

Well, now at last I've done it and have known that longed for joy
Which I used to sit and dream of as a little wide-eyed boy.
Almost fifty years I've waited and then suddenly it came.
And I seemed to see my father smiling at me through the flame.
There's a streak along my trousers that's the color of an egg,
Which is caused by striking matches on the right side of the leg.

The Coming of the Honkers

So stout of heart, so strong of wings,
His clarion call he earthward flings.
—Old Mother Nature.

Honker the Goose is the one Old Mother Nature was speaking of. Seasons come and seasons go, and as regularly as spring and autumn come around they bring with them Honker the Goose to send his ringing challenge earthward as he passes high in the sky, or perchance to tarry briefly to rest and eat. In all the myriad voices of Mother Nature's children there is none like that of Honker; none that carries with it such a sense of freedom and independence.

Honker and Mrs. Honker nest farther north than Mr. and Mrs. Quack the Mallard Ducks were in the habit of going, and ever since the arrival of the latter at the Smiling Pool they had been listening for the voice of Honker, wondering if he would stop as usual, or if he would keep on. They were old friends, were the Quacks and the Honkers.

"It seems as if they are late this year," said Mr. Quack. "I hope nothing has happened to them."

"Perhaps they seem to be late because we are a little early this year," replied Mrs. Quack.

"It may be," agreed Mr. Quack. "I hope it is. But after the terrible time we had getting as far as this I am worried about them."

"Well, we'll hope for the best," replied Mrs. Quack. "Honker is a wise old bird, and he knows all about those two-legged hunters with terrible guns. He won't take any chances he doesn't have to, and he won't allow those with him to. I think we'll be hearing him or from him before long."

It was only a few days later when, just as the Black Shadows were creeping over the Smiling Pool, there came a sound that caused both Mr. and Mrs. Quack to throw up their heads and listen intently. Peter Rabbit, who had come over to make a call, also heard it, and sat up very straight, with his long ears pointing straight up to the sky. No one spoke for a moment or two. Then faintly from the north came that sound.

"They are coming!" he cried.

Peter Rabbit kicked up his heels. "They are coming," he cried.

Mr. and Mrs. Quack relaxed. "Peter's right; they are coming. My, it is good to hear them!" exclaimed Mr. Quack.

"I wonder where they will stop. I wish they would stop here in the Smiling Pool," said Mrs. Quack.

"They won't. It is too small," declared Mr. Quack.

"I guess you are right," agreed Mrs. Quack. "It is too small, especially if there are many of them, and their voices sound as if there is quite a flock. Perhaps they will stop over on the Big River."

"I wouldn't be at all surprised," said Mr. Quack. "If they do, we should warn them that hunters with terrible guns are likely to be hiding there."

The voices were louder now. "They have flown a long way today and they are tired," said Mrs. Quack.

"How do you know?" asked Peter Rabbit.

"By the way they are gabbling," replied Mrs. Quack. They wouldn't gabble like that if they were not tired and anxious to get down on the water."

"There they are!" cried Peter.

Sure enough, against the evening light of the sky toward the north and over toward the Big River was a flock of birds flying in the shape of the letter V, and at the head was one whose voice was recognized, even at that distance, as that of Honker himself.

Who Was At Fault?

Sterling, Neb., Nov. 19.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: In the last fifteen or twenty years we have been going backwards in practically everything and if something doesn't happen we won't be here or won't be able to go back any farther.

People haven't enough houses, and not near all those they have are good, convenient houses. People haven't enough to eat and wear, but yet we have overproduction. On the farms, ninety per cent of them could use one good carpenter for two years building badly needed buildings and repairing others. But we have almost 20 per cent of our population unemployed. In the two articles mentioned above there is so much work it couldn't begin to be done in ten years. All the materials would have to be gotten, which would take a great number of men. Then of the farmers, 90 per cent of them need at least half a set of new machinery and most of them need an entire new set and very few of them have a complete set of machinery, old or new.

Under present conditions lasting ten more years the farmers will not be able to farm but we will still have overproduction, starvation, low prices, flat pocketbooks, and unemployment.

Up till about 191[illegible] we were in a fair position but not after that. Our national debt then was $1,-

REPORT SPREAD AMEBIC INFECTION DURING YEAR.

Last year we were shocked to hear of the many cases of amebic dysentery which developed in Chicago in visitors to the World's fair. This year, apparently, it will be a different story. I have not heard of any cases developing in this way in Chicago visitors.

Dr Clendening

But we should not be so much shocked as alarmed, because amebic infection has been found to be widespread in the United States and any community might possibly succeed to the unenviable reputation which Chicago acquired.

Studies in the United States since 1916 indicate that between 5 and 10 per cent of the people in the general population harbor amebae in their intestines, and are constantly discharging them. This figure seems surprisingly high, but it is confirmed in a recent survey of new arrivals at San Quentin prison, where between 5 and 10 per cent of all of these people, who represent a cross section of the population of the United States, were found to be ameba carriers.

In districts where the disease becomes endemic, or, in other words, where cases with acute symptoms show up in considerable numbers, the incidence is even higher. True, these carriers, the people whom I have just mentioned who have amebae in the intestines, are not sick, not in an active stage of the disease.

The form of the ameba which is found in them is the encysted form which does not often cause amebic dysentery. This is because it is a sleeping or vegetative form in which several animals form together in a colony with tough coat.

Some writers on health topics have taken advantage of this fact to say that the infestation of ameba in the general population is not dangerous. The fact is that these carriers are always potentially dangerous to their associates; that no one can tell when the encysted form is going to become active and set up ulceration of the intestine, especially of an individual who has not created any immunity to it.

The carriers often have created some form of immunity or protective device and do not frequently become infected, but they may give it to another individual, who immediately develops the disease in its most malignant form. Such an occurrence was probably the cause of the Chicago epidemic.

The most dangerous of all aspects of the situation is that food handlers, cooks and waiters, may be carriers, and with the amount of infestation present, efforts should be redoubled to be certain that all such persons are carefully examined lest they be allowed to spread the disease during their hours of employment.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels take one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets at night for a week and note the pleasing results.

BORAH PRESSES CAMPAIGN FOR FERA INQUIRY

Claims Million Dollars Has Disappeared In One State.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—(AP)—Replying to new charges of waste in handling relief funds made by Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, spokesmen for the relief administration said today they would welcome all the information the senator can supply in support of his accusations.

They said they already were investigating his claim that one middlewestern city of 200,000 population had 806 administration employes whose salaries together with incidental expenses totaled $1,500,000 a year.

The relief spokesmen said they had heard nothing at all of Borah's report that he had "what seems conclusive proof" that a million dollars of relief money has disappeared in one state.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—(AP)—Senator Borah of Idaho, pressed a campaign today for a congressional investigation into his charges of large "wastes" of relief funds To these charges he added the allegation that in one state a million dollars has vanished

In a radio speech last night in the Washington Evening Star's forum, the independent republican stood pat on his criticism despite FERA's assertions that he has offered no evidence and that the cost of administering relief amounts only to 11.6 per cent

He said he had a report that in one western county $572 was spent to administer $4 worth of relief

Says Facts Available.

Declaring he was not challenging the integrity of Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, he added that most of the facts he cited were known to FERA in Washington.

"I do not charge," he said, "that these matters have been brought to the personal attention of Mr. Hopkins. But the information is there and it is subject to his call"

He said he had heard there is a "No Man's Land" in accounting between FERA and state relief administrations, with each side believing the other responsible.

Says Payrolls Enormous.

"The source of waste," Borah said, "seems to come from administration in the field. The administrative payroll is enormous. Those in authority in different sections of the country, through pressure or desire, seem to place a wholly unnecessary number of persons on the administrative payroll at salaries beyond what the service justifies. x x x

"The payroll becomes clogged and padded and the cost of administration runs in some instances from 25 per cent to 50 per cent of the sum administered."

He said "a gentleman whom I know well comes to me from one of the states presenting what seems conclusive proof that a million dollars is unaccounted for in that state, that in some way or other it has utterly disappeared."

FASCIST COUP STORY DENIED

ment to set up a dictatorship in the United States."

The paper says that General Butler, ranking general of the marine corps until his retirement three years ago, has been subpoenaed by the congressional committee on un-American activities and that he has said he is ready to testify.

"Of course I told the leaders of this fascist movement that I was not interested in fascism or in any other ism," the Post quoted Butler as saying, "and that I wouldn't consider any such proposition."

The Post says General Butler said he was approached by Gerald P. MacGuire of the brokerage firm of Grayson M. P. Murphy & Co., and asked to organize 500,000 veterans into a fascist army.

MacGuire Mystified.

MacGuire, at his office today, denied that the story was true and said that he could not understand the reason for its publication.

"The man we have running the country now—President Roosevelt—is doing a perfectly satisfactory job," MacGuire said.

"I cannot understand how such a story could have been started

"I have known General Butler for years and find it impossible to believe that he had anything to do with the publication of such a story."

The writer of the story, Paul Comly French of the staff of the New York Post, says in the article that after learning of the facts from General Butler he interviewed MacGuire in New York and obtained substantially the same information from him.

MacGuire said that he remembered that French saw him, but that it was because General Butler had sent him to find out his opinion of offers that General Butler had had from various veterans organizations to lend his name to their work.

MINISTERS ASK FOR REFERENDUM

assisted with the pari-mutuel resolution.

The resolutions follow.

Desire Referendum.

Whereas the advocates of repeal repeatedly assured the electorate that in the event of repeal that communities banning the sale of liquor would be protected against such sale and

Whereas it seems that there are no existing barriers to the sale of hard liquors in the city of Lincoln whenever the repeal of the state prohibitory laws becomes effective

Be it resolved that we the Lincoln Ministerial association request the City council not to grant licenses to sell hard or intoxicating liquors until a referendum upon the sale of intoxicating liquors in the city be held We suggest that such a referendum be held at the next city election

For An Excise Board.

Whereas the city of Lincoln prior to the inauguration of state and national prohibition found it advisable to establish an excise board with police power for the issuance of liquor licenses and the control of the liquor traffic and

Whereas those who were familiar with its operation feel that the establishment of such excise board was an advance step in liquor control and that it was desirable because it separated liquor control from all other city business and

Whereas the establishment of such a board would require an amendment to the city charter

We, therefore, urge an amendment creating an excise board having regulatory powers over the sale of liquor, such powers to extend to the issuance of liscenses to sell beer and the regulation of the sales of beer We suggest that this amendment be submitted at the next city election

The Sale of Beer.

Believing that most of the vice and lawlessness and other intolerable conditions connected with the sale of 3.2 beer grow out of the efforts of distributors wholesale and retail to surround the sale of beer with social life, we petition the city council and any and all other bodies issuing licenses to sell beer in the city of Lincoln and Lancaster county, that the hours for the legal sale of beer be from 9 a m to 8 p m Monday to Saturday inclusive that

No licenses be issued for any location where a dance hall is operated that no dancing be permitted on the location where beer is sold or that no licenses to sell beer be issued within less than 300 feet of a dance hall

That no wholesaler distributor or retailer be permitted to give without cost beer, or lunch or sandwiches or other refreshments, nor to include beer in any table d' hote menu served by a restaurant or hotel

That no licenses for the sale of beer be issued to any location having rooms which may be used as living rooms or guests rooms adjacent to, above or below and entered from within the room where beer is sold Licenses may be issued to hotels to sel beer in dining rooms located on the first floo or upon a second floor if the room wherein beer is sold is not connected with or adjacent to rooms used for living or guest purposes

We urge that these restrictions be made to apply to the sale of hard liquor in the event the sale of such liquor is legalized in the city

Against Pari-Mutuel.

"The Lincoln Ministerial association understand that you are now considering both the sale of liquor and pari-mutuel race track gambling upon the state fair grounds at Lincoln We hope our information is incorrect We respectfully remind you that Lincoln and Lancaster county by an unmistakable majority voted against both. We are reminded also that twenty-nine counties in Nebraska voted against repeal and a similar large number of counties voted against pari-mutuel gambling For a number of years the state fair has been successfully developing the presence and work of our 4-H boys and girls Their parents have gladly sent them to Lincoln We believe gambling and liquor are not a proper environment for these 4-H boys and girls to live in at the state fair grounds If it would give assurance to the churches schools and parents of Nebraska if you would issue a statement saying that the state fair directors do not propose to legalize pari-mutuel race track gambling and the sale of liquor on our state fair grounds."

Depends On Legislature.

Whether pari-mutuel betting on horse races will be permitted at the Nebraska state fair next September remained undetermined Tuesday following the meeting of the fair board of managers here Monday.

Secretary Perry Reed said that although the board discussed the subject informally, it was not raised as a matter of business.

Prior to the meeting, however, A. H. Miller, Blair, president of the board, said that any action by the board would be conditioned upon legislation passed by the next legislature regulating pari-mutuel betting legalized by the people at the November 6 election

The board voted not to send a delegate to the annual meeting of the international fair association at Toronto later this month.

Mais shot his way out of jail at Richmond, Va., September 29 while under sentence to die for a slaying in a bank holdup.

The ransom notes to Weiss' family, the Record continued, threatened "horrible death" to the kidnaped man unless the money were paid

Weiss, whose family could not be reached, is a "good bit of a mystery man," reputedly wealthy and "powerful," the Record said. He was reported interested in several night clubs of the city.

MANDATE SENT IN CARLSEN CASE

state's demurrer to Carlsen's petition for writ of coram nobis, and read a written memorandum setting forth the grounds for his ruling, were Mr. Carlsen, his attorney, E. B. Perry, Attorney General Paul Good and Farley Young, deputy county attorney. Willlam Wright, attorney-general elect, who last Saturday argued the demurrer which Broady sustained, is out of town.

Question Foreclosed.

Citing two previous state supreme court cases in which it was held that "the district court possesses no inherent or common law power to grant new trials in criminal cases on the ground of newly discovered evidence, at a subsequent term to that at which the verdict of guilty was found," Judge Broady said, "the question presented here is, therefore, foreclosed in Nebraska, and the demurrer to the petition is sustained."

Judge Broady cited a portion of the opinion in the case of Hubbard vs. State in which it was set forth that "the authority and jurisdiction of the district courts to grant new trials in criminal cases are derived from statute, to which resort must be hand in determining the extent of their powers regarding the subject"

In addition, Judge Broady said, "In as much as this case has heretofore been appealed to and affirmed by, the supreme court, where it is now lodged...this court is without authority or jurisdiction to make any findings or enter any order other than shall be necessary to carry out the order of such mandate."

Followed High Ruling.

The move by Carlsen's attorney to obtain a writ of coram nobis came almost simultaneously with the announcement by the United States supreme court that it would not review the certiorari writ filed there after the supreme court of Nebraska had upheld the district court verdict in which Carlsen was found guilty of forging facsimile signatures in the execution of certain coupons.

The petition for the writ claimed new evidence had been uncovered wherein Thomas J. McLaughlin, a witness against Carlsen, said he had discovered that he actually did grant Carlsen authority orally to execute certain coupons. Thus, it was set forth, his testimony at the trial was "incomplete and inaccurate."

CHANGE ORDERED IN FREIGHT RATES

their claim. Most of the revisions are technical

The increase in the cost of long haul freight shipments is achieved by increasing the rates of progression. In other words, freight will not be hauled as far for the same amount of money as in the past.

To Benefit Lincoln.

Good news for Lincoln and other interior cities of Nebraska, as well as for shipping interests in western territory generally, is contained in the Washington announcement of a decision by the interstate commerce commission ordering reductions in class freight rates on short haul consignments and relatively increasing the charges on longer hauls

Until details of the order have been received and comparisons made with existing rates, the extent of its benefits cannot be determined Secretary Whitten of the Lincoln chamber of commerce said, however, that there is no question the general effect will be helpful to manufacturing, wholesale, and retail lines of business here.

"We have been at something of a disadvantage as against New York, Chicago, and other distant trade centers since the decision in the western class rate case three years ago," Mr. Whitten stated, "and this order will correct that condition at least in part. Our firms will be able to ship in their goods in carload lots, or to assemble materials here for manufacture, and redistribute merchandise and factory products to the surrounding territory in smaller quantities, on a more favorable basis than hitherto. Conversely, higher rates on longer shipments will serve to protect our market against inroads from the cities located a long way off."

225,000,000 but now will come close to $27,082,869,183, to say nothing of private debts. The European countries are indebted to private citizens of the United States to the amount of $68,000,000. They do not have any intention of paying it back. The foreign countries also have refused to pay their debts to the U S government Who is going to pay these debts" The common people of America or indirectly the farmer for indirectly everything comes from the soil The private corporations or individuals instead of standing the loss simply raise their price to the American people, yet we give them protection from foreign markets with high tariffs so they can do this Why not let the foreign nations send us goods, they deserve the trade as well as our manufacturers, who treat us in such a manner.

Who is the fault of all our debts and tribulations? Those not known to us are heads of large munitions, textile and other industries. Wilson could have helped our situation by refusing to enter into the war like he promised. We had no reason to enter the war. Here are the reasons for which we supposedly entered the war

1—The main one The British Lusitania was sunk, there were 124 American lives lost These were warned before they sailed not to sail on this ship This ship was carrying munitions The Germans were blamed for not saving the lives of passengers but they had only a submarine big enough to hold only themselves. Besides the Lusitania was carrying munitions, so they had a right to sink it.

2—The second to make the world safe for democracy. Suppose Germany had conquered, she would have done well to have held Europe under subjection let alone her power to the western hemisphere. Europe and Asia Minor have in the last four or five thousand years been controlled by one power or another time and again and not any power has kept its position very long

3—There was propaganda about Germany sending submarines over here during the war but all she sent was merchant submarines to get a cargo of costly dyes and other merchandise. That they could have sent submarines over here from Germany to do damage it was preposterous Those are supposed to be the reasons why we entered the war. If those reasons had been given to the people in the manner above would we have entered the war? If Wilson had been a man he would have at least tried to give them in a like manner

But it was the centers of industries who wanted war War could promote trade and large profits so they wanted war and they did everything in their power to make war They were so successful in spreading propaganda that if a man said one word against the foolish activities he was an outcast from there on and liable to find himself in prison The United States if they had refused to loan any money or materials to any of the countries involved in the war it would have saved billions of dollars and millions of lives It would have saved all the present woe and distress of today, all the debts that are unpaid

This could have been prevented by a few men.

If the United States wants to prosper it had better follow the Monroe Doctrine for Europe is the most unpeaceful place in the world In one part or another they have had war most of the time

Lee Lawrie Approves Sculpture at Capitol

a week's rest, he will go to Washington, D. C., where the Ardolino company is executing a large job on the new Archieves building there

Although Beretta has been in the United States since 1903, the character of his work made it impossible to remain in any one place long enough to take out citizenship papers The capitol job, however, offered that opportunity, for he received his last citizenship papers in the spring

Mr Lawrie, as sculptor, prepares in his studios near Central park, in New York, clay models of the capitol carvings These are prepared after pencil sketches have been gone over and discussed by several of his associates, and members of the architects Mayers, Murray & Phillip, of New York, successors to Goodhue

From these clay models are prepared plaster casts. The casts are sent to Lincoln, often in several sections, because of their enormous size. Beretta executes the sculptures—without missing his measurements a fraction of an inch—from these plaster casts. Afterwards the casts are either stored in the capitol basement, or given to the art depaitments of various universities The University of Nebraska has many of them.

Given Award For Sower.

Lawrie had been associated with Bertram Goodhue on buildings for nearly 25 years prior to the designing of the capitol His work is found on a wide variety of buildings, with the capitol at the head of the list He has twice received the gold medal in fine arts of the American Institute of Architects—a coveted honor. He last won this in 1927, for his work on the capitol In 1931, he was given the gold medal award of the Architectural league of New York, another coveted honor, for his statue of the Sower on the tower At an international exhibition of modern sculpture in Philadelphia last year, the original model of the Sower was the central exhibit

"Big Ten" Cooking Sour Dish for Minnesota

String Gopher Stars Face Decree Barring Them From Football

BY LEO FISCHER.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20—(INS)—Ten gray-haired professors and a 15-word rule apparently are going to succeed in doing what tons of football beef and brawn have failed to do this season—stop Minnesota's unchecked rampage through college football ranks. The elderly gentlemen are the faculty advisers of the Big Ten, the rule is one which reads:

Hits Gophers Between Eyes.

"No student shall participate in intercollegiate athletics for more than three years in the aggregate."

The effect of the words, which have been part of the Big Ten code for many years, will be to deprive the Gophers next season of two men who have been particularly important in their title drive this year—Stan Kostka, fullback, and Bill Bevan, guard. It also may cost them Art Clarkson, halfback, and Vernon Oech, guard, who likewise are reported to have competed as freshmen at Oregon as well as with the varsity, although confirmation on them is lacking.

Kostka and Bevan, technically, have competed only two years in intercollegiate competition, and in any other group except the Big Ten would still have another season ahead of them. But it seems that both matriculated at Oregon when "Doc" Spears went there from Minnesota, and, as freshmen at that school, participated in several games against other teams. Pacific Coast conference freshman teams are allowed to play a regular schedule.

Big Ten Has Precedents.

Nothing would have been thought of this except for the fact that about two years ago the eligibility of a Big Ten athlete was questioned because of previous freshman competition. Prior to that, only varsity and junior college playing were counted. The faculty advisers, who are the real rulers of conference sports, decided in this case that "intercollegiate athletics" referred to competition of any kind in which college teams were played, and ruled accordingly.

Chuck Hajek, a fine center, who played on a freshman team in South Carolina, was lost to Northwestern this season as a result. Bob Deem, a Chicago tackle, was declared ineligible for further competition because he had played on a military academy team against colleges. One or two other cases in football and other sports have also been brought up as a result of the ruling.

No Chance For Change.

A movement is on foot to have the Big Ten change its interpretation at the December meeting, but anyone who knows the faculty advisers realizes that Knox has a better chance of beating Minnesota than there is of any switch in their opinions. As a matter of principle, the conference faculty men are against transfer students, anyhow, and it will take more than the pleadings of the Minnesota students and newspapers to cause a shift in sentiment.

As a result, it appears as though Kostka and Bevan, at least, will be making their final appearance in Minnesota uniforms next Saturday against Wisconsin. Their loss, along with that of Butch Larson, Bob Tenner, Pug Lund, Bill Bengtson and a few others is going to make it somewhat difficult for the Gophers to come back next season with the same terrific array of talent which has carried them through unbeaten so far.

The Boys Followed "Doc."

The Oregon angle is a curious one, and bears a little explaining. When "Doc" Spears took the job on the Pacific coast, a number of promising high school boys from the Twin Cities decided to matriculate out there with him. When he returned to the Big Ten, the faculty advisers (perhaps they knew something) passed a rule barring an athlete from transferring to another school if his old coach made a switch to that school. At least, they barred him from competing in athletics. If he just wanted to be near his old coach, that was o. k. with them.

As a result, the Minnesota boys who decided to return home enrolled at their state school, instead of following Spears to Wisconsin. Clarkson came along because he and Kostka were close friends.

PRESS dispatches from the Pacific region suggest that while Minnesota is first choice to represent the east in the Rose Bowl classic and that Pitt still is a possibility, the likely selection is Alabama, provided, of course, that the Gophers are unable to get Big Ten consent.

It costs nothing to disagree with the sort of stuff the westerners are putting on the wires, so here I am to chip in with the theory that the Californians who actually control the Pasadena selection have no intention to fire at half-cock by taking Alabama.

The Crimson Tide has performed in three games in the Bowl and although the Pasadena committee hasn't said so officially, it stands to reason that the folks in the Citrus Belt have a preference for new blood. Minnesota provides all the required answers and, on top of that, could take to Pasadena a truly great team.

IT IS in the record that Pasadena wanted Michigan last fall and even went so far as to unofficially invite the Wolverines, but when the latter were balked in their efforts to get Big Ten consent, certain rumblings were heard that never again would the west bother about bidding for a Big Ten representative.

That was the threat, at least, but the purpose of talk of that sort was to save the west's face. As a matter of fact, I have it on excellent authority, the same being Bill Henry, wise old fox of the Los Angeles Times' sport staff, that the coast wants Minnesota more now than it wanted the Wolverines an even year ago.

Instead of flirting with Minnesota first, asking the latter to arrange for conference approval, Bill has let the cat out of the bag by making it known that a plan is on foot to get the Gophers by means of a ruse which, in actual football, could be described something in the nature of a "hidden ball" trick.

THE coast scheme, as unfolded by the Los Angeles oracle, is to convince the faculty delegates of the Pacific Coast conference that they, rather than the Pasadena committee or the school nominated to represent the west, should take chips in the game of winning Big Ten consent.

Faculty delegates in all the college conferences are pretty much cast in the same mold. They take keen delight in resisting pressure from outside sources, but if one faculty man asks a favor of another, the request is reasonably sure to be given serious consideration.

Wherefore, if it should come to pass that the Coast conference faculty delegates are willing to front for the far west, sending a formal request that the Big Ten waive its "no post-season games" rule, it may be accepted as something of a possibility that the Big Ten would step into line.

MEANTIME, it may be written in the book that Minnesota is lugging an intense desire to send the Gophers to Pasadena for the New Year's day classic. Also that Minnesota athletic authorities, in full sympathy with the ambitions of the Gopher players, are fearful that overzealous followers may "blow the works" by talking out of turn, turning on outside pressure and butting into the affairs of the university.

Dick Cullum's comment in the Minneapolis Journal gives the low-down on the situation in the Minnesota U. camp, as follows:

"There is, or was, some sort of chance, remote but discernible, that Minnesota's football team may play a post-season game.

"That chance is being jeopardized by well meaning enthusiasts who believe the game can be arranged by bringing pressure to bear. Any effort to bring pressure to bear upon the university or the Big Ten, especially political and commercial pressure, will be resented and properly so.

"Those who say, 'Oh, they won't play, won't they? Well, we'll see if so and so or so and so can't change their mind,' are simply setting up a situation which requires university officials to assert their independence of outside influence."

CONTINUING, Cullum says:

"There is a principle involved, the most precious principle by which educators are governed. It is the principle of academic freedom. It is not that there would be any harm in authorizing a post-season football game but that, if the authorization were the result of outside influence, it would surrender a principle that governs matters far more important than football games.

"It is quite all right for enthusiasts to recommend such a game for the Gophers. The boys are entitled to the game and there is no sound reason why they should not have it; but a good way to make it certain they will not have it is to organize pressure and work through the medium of political threats.

"As strongly as we favor a post-season game, we should certainly take the side of the university if the issue ever got to a clash between the right of the university, or the Big Ten, to use its own judgment and the right of outsiders to give orders.

"After all it is only a football game, which, incidentally, is one reason why there could be no harm in the Gophers playing nine of them instead of eight."

BIBLE PREPPING 2 HUSKER TEAMS

Nebraska Coach Making Ready Shoot the Works At Missouri U.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

When the Missouri Tigers invade Memorial stadium next Saturday for the Homecoming day-Nebraska day attraction on the Cornhusker home schedule, Head Coach Dana X. Bible plans to have two teams in readiness to swing into action. Bible is not inclined to let the dismal showing by the Bengals this season catch him napping, but he does hope the boys can get enough of an early lead to permit insertion of replacements and save some of the regulars for the all-important Thanksgiving day argument with the Kansas State Wildcats.

Accordingly, this week will find the Nebraska coaching staff dividing attention between two aggregations, with the prospect that each will be highly polished for the Saturday fray.

Starting Combination.

The combination due to open against the Tigers will have Bernie Scherer and Ray Toman, ends; Game-Captain Russell Thompson and Walt Pflum, tackles; Jim Heldt and Glenn Justice, guards; Franklin Meier, center; Henry Bauer, quarter; Bob Benson and Lloyd Cardwell, halfbacks; Glenn Skewes, fullback.

The second outfit probably will list Virgil Yelkin and Lester McDonald, ends; Carroll Reese and Harold Holmbeck, tackles; Neal Mehring and Ladas Hubka, guards; Bill Horchem, center; Allen Turner, quarter; Bud Parsons or Ralph Eldridge and Ron Douglas, halfbacks; Sam Francis, fullback. Johnny Williams, who is rapidly rounding into shape, will serve as utility with the first eleven.

PLAINSMEN REST UP FOR BRONCHOS

With an open date this weekend, Nebraska Wesleyan's gridders are taking it easy for a time before settling into strenuous work for the all-important Hastings game at the Adams county bailiwick Thanksgiving day. Both teams are undefeated in the loop, and to the winner will go the 1934 N. C. A. C. crown.

Wesleyan will have full strength back for the workouts late this week when Vernon Maynard, injured tackle, will come off the shelf.

Schwartzkopf Pilot Lincoln Hi Eleven

Sam Schwartzkopf, 195-pound tackle, has been elected captain of the 1934 Lincoln high school gridiron machine which is knocking at the state title door. Schwartzkopf, a senior, lettered as a reserve fullback last fall, and will pilot the Red and Black in the final game of the season Friday afternoon, when Beatrice appears on the Lincoln oval.

DECISION DUE IN BASEBALL PLAN

Lincoln Will Know This Week If Club In Gear Loop to Be Shifted.

Francis "Pug" Griffin and "Cy" Lingle, owners of the Lincoln franchise in the Nebraska State league, are in Louisville, Ky., this week for the adjourned meeting of Western league club owners and the annual convention of the minor leagues.

Chief purpose of the Lincoln men in making the drive to the Kentucky metropolis is to finally pass on the advisability of taking over the Rock Island franchise in the Western league, transferring it to Lincoln.

Unwise Legislation.

If the magnates of the Gear league show a disposition to repeal certain unwise legislation enacted at their session in Des Moines two weeks ago, notably the increased salary limit, Griffin and Lingle may be in a mood to take over, on behalf of Lincoln, the place on the circuit which Rock Island is about to vacate.

"PUG" GRIFFIN.

Otherwise, it is probable the Lincoln owners may not care to affiliate with the Western folks—not, at least, until the Gear loop comes to its senses and realizes the importance of handling its affairs in a businesslike manner.

Beltzer Hatches New Scheme.

James E. Beltzer, who recently resigned the presidency of the Nebraska league, also is in Louisville to hobnob with the baseball magnates and talk up his new scheme to operate in Lincoln a college for young pastimers in the diamond sport. If Beltzer meets with a satisfactory response, he plans to make use of Landis Field for instruction purposes, with baseball veterans in charge.

Highs to Vote On Changes In Rules

Twelve amendments to the Nebraska High School Athletic association constitution, several of which are presented and refused each year, will be under consideration by the annual delegate assembly meeting in Lincoln, Friday, Dec. 7. Amendments on file with Secretary O. L. Webb include:

1 and 2—Require one semester attendance after transfer to clear eligibility. Present rule is two semesters.

3—Require semester residence where athlete changes schools in same district.

4—Cut annual dues from $15, $10, $5 to $12, $7, $3.

5—Eliminate spring football.

6—Stiffer eligibility requirements.

7—Permit athlete nine semesters of residence eligibility. Present rule is eight semesters.

8—Require athlete to be "up in his grades" only during the semester he is engaged in sport.

9—Set aside $500 each year to pay expenses of delegate assembly, thus sparing delegates any embarrassment of voting themselves a refund.

10—Require physical examination of athletes only once each year instead of once each semester.

11—Change approved officials rule to permit use of one football official not registered with the association.

12—Cut dues to $3 for schools with average daily attendance of 25 or less.

DRAMATIC DASH BY EX-CHAMPION

Quick Trip By Dempsey When He Learns Wife Seriously Ill.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—(INS) Jack Dempsey's dramatic dash by auto and train across three states to the bedside of his ill wife, the former Hannah Williams, was rewarded today by a decided improvement in his wife's condition.

The former heavyweight champion, who was called from a ring where he was refereeing wrestling bouts in Harwichport, Mass., arrived at his hotel apartment early today. He heaved a vast sigh of relief when he found Mrs. Dempsey had taken a turn for the better.

Unshaven and heavy-eyed from a sleepless night, Jack sat beside her bed and expressed delight when the nurse said Mrs. Dempsey's temperature had dropped from 103 to an even 100.

Infection Develops.

Four days ago, Mrs. Dempsey was moving some furniture in an apartment into which the Dempsey's planned to move this weekend. She was struck violently in the chest by a door which slammed accidentally and it was believed an infection developed.

Yesterday she was taken seriously ill and last night, when her condition became threatening, a hurried telephone call was put in to Harwichport.

Jack bolted from the ring, left his baggage behind and drove to Providence, with a motorcycle escort clearing the way. At Providence, he caught a train which brought him into New York early today. He completed the last leg of his dash by taxi, urging the chauffeur to "step on it."

Greek Comes Back To Repeat Old Act

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—(INS)—The stirring, old melodrammer, "Champion Tosses Challenger," came back to Broadway last night after a brief absence in the provinces and the consensus of local critics was: "The same old stuff!"

That old, familiar Jim Londos of Greece again appeared in the leading role of the champion and his performance was the equal of any he has given in the past. Playing opposite him was one Everett Marshall, who was good, too. Of course, a worthwhile performance was expected from Marshall. Didn't he rehearse seven times before in what is laughingly called the hinterland?

Running Time Reduced.

It usually takes Londos and Marshall about an hour and a quarter to do their stuff. This time they cut their running time down to one hour, 10 minutes and two seconds out of consideration for the Broadway crowd, who had a few other engagements to fill.

Both men grimaced with equal skill and the grunts were all that could be desired. The coup-de-grace was, of course, Mr. Londos' celebrated Japanese arm lock.

IOWA.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Nov. 20—(INS)—Injuries are expected to keep two Iowa regulars out of the conference gridiron game Saturday against the heavy scoring Ohio State eleven. Teh casualties are Dwight Hoover, halfback, and Bernie Page, end.

Amateur Football.

At Seneca, Kas.—Panama City CCC, 0; Seneca CCC 6.

At Grand Island—Grand Island Cardinals, 12, Fort Crook 7.

At Nebraska City—Tecumseh CCC, 26, Nebraska City CCC 0.

BALLER PRAISES BEATRICE TEAM

Rates Lincoln's Next Foe As Best Coached In Prep Circle.

Dancing tantalizingly like a mirage just beyond the grasp of Lincoln high's grid huskies Monday afternoon was the state championship. One more barrier, that of Beatrice, stands between the Ballermen and their goal.

Beatrice, coached by Bob Latta, will bring a well-tutored eleven to the Oval Friday. A light fast backfield, working out of a shift, has bowed only to Crete and Tecumseh this fall. Coach Baller, Lincoln high mentor, said Monday that he regarded Beatrice as the best-coached aggregation in the state.

No Additional Injuries.

No additional injuries were sustained at Grand Island Saturday by the Red and Black, but Johnny Capron was on the sidelines Monday with a second attack of boils, and Stan Brewster was not in suit because of a bruised leg aggravated by the Islanders. Brewster will, however, be in suit the rest of the week and take his regular starting post in the lineup Friday.

Dissatisfied with the way his offense functioned against the Manderys Saturday, Baller set to work Monday night to tighten a lot of loose spots and speed up the entire attack. The kicking of Merlin Mason, who consistently booted the ball out of bounds around the 10 and 15-yard lines at Grand Island, featured the tilt and merited the praise of the Red and Black tutor Monday.

In "Big Six" Grid Camps

BY CHARLES GRUMICH.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 20—(AP)—Thumb-nail sketches of the Big Six football teams:

Nebraska — Vulnerable in the line, but plenty fast. . . . Not very serious in the "fear" that Missouri may turn, like the worm, and beat the Huskers next Saturday. . . . Presenting Russell Thompson, 235-pound tackle, as this week's game-captain.

Missouri—Five regulars on injured list. . . . The first earned touchdowns of the season scored in 13-40 loss to Washington bring little cheer. . . . About time for the student editor to come out with his weekly story about Missouri football. . . . Loyal fans shushing the facetious wiseacres who suggest a post-season game with Knox.

Kansas State — Drawing large crowds of spectators who brave a drizzling rain to watch workout of the latest "wonder team," produced in the first season of Coach Lynn Waldorf's regime. . . . Ayers, Churchill, Flenthrope and Shafer favoring injuries and taking it easy. . . . Alarming reports by Scout Cochrane from the Iowa State victory over Drake. . . . Cochrane says the Purple must improve if they are to defeat the Cyclones Saturday and stay in the race with Nebraska for the title.

Iowa State — Light workouts, stressing defense. . . . Coach George Veenker satisfied with the offense in the 33-12 triumph over Drake.

Oklahoma—Fullback Ben Poynor disabled and definitely out of the Oklahoma A. & M. and George Washington U. Games, closing the Sooners' campaign. . . . Beede Long, blocking back, nursing injured shoulder, giving coaches job of rebuilding backfield for Saturday.

Kansas — Jayhawkers hear of their mistakes in the 3-0 loss to Nebraska. . . . No injuries reported after muddy Husker battle as they begin prayerful preparation for invasion of Charley Bachman's great Michigan State team next Saturday.

Fourteen Cage Games On Lincoln High List

The Lincoln high school basketball schedule for the 1934-'35 season is near completion. Assistant Superintendent O. H. Bimson told the board of education Tuesday morning. He said 14 opponents have been scheduled and one more team will be added. He said the complete list would be announced in the near future.

PESEK AND EVKO BARRED BY TRUST

Main Event Contestants Tonight Boycotted By Mat Combine.

The best two out-of-three, no-time limit match between John Pesek of Ravenna and John Evko of New York City will feature the wrestling program at the 4-H arena Tuesday night which opens at 8:30. The building will be heated, according to announcement today by Matchmaker Adam Krieger.

Pesek and Evko have one thing in common. Both are under the official ban of the wrestling trust which controls grappling in the east, due to the fact that both refuse to hippodrome their performances and take a dive when told to by the "boss." When Strangler Lewis was champion, Evko chased him from New York to Seattle with a wad of money as a forfeit in an effort to get a match, but Lewis evaded him each time. It will be Pesek's first grapple in Lincoln in six weeks and Evko's first appearance in Nebraska.

JOHN PESEK.

Rowdy Rudy Present.

For the bugs who are addicted to the "modern" aspects of rassling, plenty of entertainment is forecast. Rowdy Rudy LaDitzi, the Poughkeepsie bad man, is due to tangle with Chuck Middaugh, former Chillicothe boxer, in the 30-minute, two-out-of-three, semi-windup, while the 20-minute, one-fall preliminary brings together Jack O'Dell, the Pueblo ruffian, and Abe Kaplin, claimant of the world's Jewish championship.

Adam Krieger, matchmaker, will preside as referee for all three bouts.

Yanks Get One Run Off Nippon Pitcher

SHIZUOKA, Japan, Nov. 20—(AP)—A pitchers' battle between the veteran Earl Whitehill and 17-year-old Eiji Sawamura thrilled 16,000 fans today as Babe Ruth's homer won the first real baseball game his barnstormers have played in Japan, 1 to 0.

Sawamura, recently expelled from Kyoto commercial school because he played baseball against professionals, tamed the major leagues' "murderers' row" and approached a brilliant shutout for Ruth's home run in the seventh. He allowed only five hits, while Whitehill limited the Nippon All-Stars to three. Score by innings:

| | | | | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Americans | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 1 | 0 | 0 | —1 5 1 |
| Nippon Stars | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | —0 3 1 |

Whitehill and Hayes; Sawamura and Kuji.

Baer Bids for Brawl In London Ring With Champion of England

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 20—(INS)—A half-million dollar battle in London between Max Baer and Jack Peterson, British Empire champion, next June was planned today by Ancil Hoffman, the world title-holder's manager. Whether the fight with Peterson can be arranged or not, Hoffman announced that Baer certainly will fight in June.

California Girl Is Bride of Lewellen

Lincoln friends have received announcement of the marriage of Hortense Marvel Christensen, Chula Vista, Cal., to Verne Lewellen of Green Bay, Wis., former University of Nebraska athlete and captain of the 1923 varsity football team. The couple will reside at Green Bay, where Lewellen is a practicing attorney.

Max Takes to Hospital.

In the meantime, Max was preparing to fly to El Paso for treatment of his left arm, which became infected when he scratched a skin eruption. His right arm, which coincidentally became inflamed from a mosquito bite, was greatly improved today.

Steve Hamas, Art Lasky and Primo Carnera again—in the order named—are other possibilities for Baer's next fight, said Hoffman, while Chicago, Philadelphia and New York are being considered as alternative sites.

Over in Britain, the fight fans, who really can't be said to be accustomed to the best in pugilistic fare, have made an idol of the youn Welsh Peterson and would probably pack any stadium in London if he got a crack at the title. Hoffman apparently thinks there ought to be a lot of money to be had in pounds and shillings, and not too much risk for Max. Peterson hasn't beat anybody much except Larry Gans, colored Canadian, whom he trimmed twice this year in empire championship fights.

Dempsey As Promoter.

Jack Dempsey will promote the fight, according to Hoffman, and James R. Crofton, who has boxing interests in San Diego, the Dalles, Oregon, and Cuernavaca and Agua Caliente, Mexico, will back the affair.

Crofton today showed a telegram from Dempsey which asserted Baer's contract with Madison Square Garden was void.

Baer, feeling very restless in the bed to which he was ordered by a doctor yesterday, sat up long enough to confirm everything Hoffman announced.

MAY PAY AHEAD ON SPECIAL TAX

Court Holds Property Owner Can Obviate Interest Charge.

A property owner may pay special assessment taxes in full in advance, with any interest to date, instead of taking up each installment as it falls due, and thus economize on future interest charges, the Nebraska Supreme court held Tuesday in reversing and remanding a Fillmore county case.

Mildred Bayton Todd, Geneva, sought in 1933 to pay in this manner a balance of $379 of special paving taxes assessed against her property, and when her offer was refused brought a mandamus action against Clay Thomas, county treasurer, and the city treasurer, but the District court held she was without a cause of action, and dismissed her suit.

Chappell Writes Opinion.

The statutes, the opinion written by District Judge E. B. Chappell said, confers upon a property owner the option of paying in installments any special levies as they fall due, but does not prevent payment of such levies in a lump sum.

The opinion declared that a tax is not a debt founded upon a contract, and since the obligation to pay taxes is not contractual, they do not draw interest like ordinary obligations, except when the statutes specifically provide.

While the opinion did not define the status of holders of bonds issued against the paving district to be retired by the tax levy, it did declare that the city of Geneva "cannot complain that it must pay interest upon the bonds until maturity. The city is generally liable for the bonds and interest in any event whether the special assessments are ever paid or not."

WALLACE CHARTS NEW AAA COURSE

Objective Is Controlled Expansion, He Tells National Grange.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 20—(AP)—Secretary Wallace defined the future course of agricultural adjustment today as one of "controlled expansion, rather than reduction."

Speaking before the National Grange he declared that "to permit a controlled expansion, and also to permit agriculture profitably to produce enough to tide the country over years of drouth ought to be our objective."

He warned the farm group of a prospective drive to scrap crop control, led by "sincere idealists, laissez faire economists, and certain business groups interested in volume."

"Because certain surpluses have been whittled down, because farm incomes are rising, and because of the consequences of the drouth," he said, "I can foresee a powerful drive, in and out of congress, to remove any and all restrictions on agricultural production.

"We must play with the cards that are dealt," he said. "Agriculture cannot survive in a capitalistic society as a philanthropic enterprise. If the cry of those who bid our farmers think of all those hungry Chinamen were heeded, hundreds of thousands of American farm families would be destroyed."

No one who believes in the profit system, he added, "and who grants industry the right to control its production, can fairly deny agriculture the same right."

Pimples Itched and Burned Severely. Healed by Cuticura.

"My trouble started with a breaking out of pimples on my scalp. From this it affected my ears and neck and it spread rapidly, causing disfigurement. My skin was sore and red and itched and burned severely, causing loss of sleep. My hair fell out considerably, causing it to become thin and dry.

"I tried different remedies, but they did not do any good. Then I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. They relieved me so I bought more and in a month's time I was healed." (Signed) Jim Moseley, 13881 Reynolds Ave., Detroit, Mich., Feb. 15, 1934.

Utilities Stocks Steady Tuesday; Rails Lag And Other Groups Fail To Make Material Progress

Exchange Has Irregular Close

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—(AP)—

While the utilities steadied in today's stock market, the rails were laggards throughout the session and other groups were unable to show any material progress. There were a few outstanding specialty gainers, but most price changes were narrow. The close was irregular. Transfers approximated 800,000 shares.

Financial markets were inclined to droop today without especial pressure being exerted against any particular category.

Stocks milled about uncertainly, although the trend generally was moderately lower. While there was scattered firm specialties, and selling appeared to have dried up in the depressed utilities, the backwardness of the rails tended to restrain operators for the advance. Trading activity was considerably under that of the preceding session.

Bonds were dull and mixed. As in the equity division, various loans attracted followings at higher levels, but the list, on the whole, showed little inclination to resume the upward movement. U. S. government securities were easier. Wheat and rye yielded a cent or so a bushel. Cotton was barely steady. Foreign exchanges continued to hold a restricted range.

Shares of International Business Machines were up a point at a new high for the year. Noranda Mines was off as much at a new 1934 low. Interboro Rapid Transit and Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit gained 1 to 2 and Associated Dry Goods rallied nearly 2. American Telephone got back another point of its recent losses.

Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New only, fractionally, as were U. S. Steel, Jersey and North American were down Goodyear, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, U. S. Smelting, Howe Sound, United Aircraft, Liggett & Myers B, Chrysler and American Commercial Alcohol. The rails, including Santa Fe, Delaware & Hudson, New York Central and Union Pacific, were down around a point or more.

The rally of the traction group reflected reports of an imminent unification agreement. The oils were almost at a standstill and the metals seemed to lack any stimulus, inflationary or otherwise.

The speech of Donald R. Richberg, executive director of the national emergency council, assuring business that there would be no "orgy of inflation," was pleasing to banking circles but not so helpful to the speculative forces which have been conducting their operations on the theory that drastic currency expansion is a foregone conclusion.

At the same time, serious attention was given to the Richberg warning that private enterprise "must bring about the re-employment of four or five million workers in the near future" either through the substantial growth of industry generally "or through further government activities."

Notwithstanding the intermittent sagging tendencies displayed by various equity groups, most market commentators were still moderately bullish. These pointed out that the friendlier spirit of the administration toward industry as a whole, the plans of co-operation by business with recovery units, and the slow but consistent advances in the business pace, provided the back ground for constructive activities.

Chicago Produce.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 20—(AP)—

Poultry was steady and butter and eggs unsettled on the Chicago mercantile exchange today.

Butter and egg futures dropped lower again on the Chicago mercantile exchange yesterday, weakening rather sharply on bearish news items and weather reports. Butter closed off ½ to ⅜ cent, eggs 1 to 2 cents.

The movement of eggs out of storage totaled nearly 17,000 cases less than last year. The warm weather, which is unfavorable to a good movement of refrigerator stocks, acted as a further bearish influence. Liquidation set in on all deliveries, with new selling again gaining. After the market had swung down a half cent, new buyers became more active, but final sales were near the day's lows.

Butter withdrawals continued heavier than last year, but the cash market weakened a half cent. New York fell off a cent and extras in New York today were quoted under the Chicago market, contrary to the usual rule. The futures were moderately supported, but selling was active during much of the session, liquidation and new selling combining.

Sales: Butter, 136 cars; eggs, 269. Deliveries: Butter, 22 cars; eggs, 4.

Prices on Wheat Hammered Down

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 20—(AP)—

A profit taking movement, uncovering stop-loss orders and disclosing a technically overbought market, hammered wheat and corn prices down for sharp losses today.

Trade news was not as bearish as the price fall indicated although foreign markets were weak and rains in the domestic southwest were believed to have mitigated drouth danger in some sections. Continued steadiness of the cash market helped corn futures to establish new season's high marks before the recession.

Wheat closed 1¾ to 2⅛ cents lower than Monday's finish, May at 97⅞@98c, and corn was 1⅝ to 1⅞ cents off, May 84⅛@84¼c. Oats, rye and provisions also were lower.

Showing independent strength, corn prices clung to the highest level of the season early today, despite profit taking, as some holders sought to take advantage of a 6-cent gain in 10 days. Demand for cash corn was a stimulating factor. Wheat displayed early weakness, but held fairly steady in sympathy with corn. Opening ⅛ cent lower to ⅜ cent higher, May 85⅝@85⅞c, corn later held near the initial range. Wheat was unchanged to ⅝ cent lower, May 99½@¾c, and subsequently dropped further.

Easiness in foreign markets and good rains in sections of the domestic winter wheat belt southwest, relieving drouth conditions there to some extent, had a bearish influence on wheat trade and a loss of a cent soon occurred. Houses with eastern connections were conspicuous sellers. There was some apprehension as to unsettled weather in Argentina, which might delay harvesting there, according to cables. However, trade as a whole was very light and the market showed little power to rally.

Realizing of profits proceeded at a good pace in the corn pit, causing a reaction from top figures of more than a cent. Commission houses and some local interests were active in the selling. Notice was taken on assertions than an even greater demand for corn was to be expected in regions where the summer drouth reduced yields almost to nothing, especially if financial support is given feeders.

Some traders said corn demand and wheat feeding operations had been fully reflected in prices, at least for the time being. Oats weakened in sympathy with corn.

Provisions were lower, responsive to hog market declines.

About mid-session wheat was ⅞ to 1¼ cent lower, compared with yesterday's finish, and corn was ½ to ¾ cent down.

Corn receipts in Chicago today were 29 cars, a week ago 126 and a year ago 209.

NEW YORK CURB REVIEW.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—(AP)—

The curb market encountered considerable profit taking today and many leaders sold minor fractions to a point or so lower before steadying. Major activity again occurred in the utilities where most issues yielded moderately under persistent offerings, a large portion of which had accumulated overnight. Trading in other sections of the list was light.

American Gas and Electric Bond & Share each lost around ¼ point before steadying just above the lows of the year. Cities Service advanced a small fraction but lost it before the end of the first hour and Niagara Hudson was slightly lower. A long list of oils, metals and industrials showed considerable irregularity and were mostly lower, including American Cyanamid "B," the two Swift issues, Lake Shore Mines, Creole and International Petroleum.

An extreme gain of 7 points was made by General Tire & Rubber, although other leading specialties such as A. O. Smith, Schiff & Co. and Ohio Brass "B" which had a run up of more than 2 points on Monday were generally inactive and showed little change in price. Pan-American Airways was fractionally higher and Sherwin Williams held unchanged after several transactions.

NEW YORK BOND REVIEW.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—(AP)—

Over the entire domestic bond list today there was a reflection of a decidedly narrow buying interest. Some of the corporate issues managed to hold around the previous finals, but the majority of low priced classifications were inclined to droop. Utility loans continued to lack support.

U. S. governments traveled a little further in the reactionary trend which developed in the late trading yesterday. Slipping off 2-32nds to 5-32nds of a point Home Owners Loan 3s sold at 98.28; 4s at 100.2; Federal Farm 3s at 98.25; Treasury 4¼-3¼s, 101.25; Treasury 4¼s of 1952, 111.26; 3s of 1951-55, 100.6. Federal Farm 3¼s and Liberty 4th 4¼s made small gains.

As losses ranging to around a point American Smelting & Refining 5s were traded at 106½, Baltimore & Ohio 4½s at 51⅝. Columbia Gas & Electric 5s, 81¼; Detroit Edison 4½s, 156¾; Erie 5s, 67; North American 5s 82; Postal Telegraph 5s, 42¾; Shell Union Oil 5s, 102⅞; Standard Oil of New York 4½s, 102½, and Western Union 5s, 83.

Dealings in the foreign sector were limited and prices mixed. French 7½s worked ahead half a point to 187 and Italy 7s showed a like gain at 96½. German government issues declined fractionally.

Grain Notes

CHICAGO, Nov. 20—(AP)—Cash corn continued its leadership on the market yesterday with the December delivery rising to a new high quotation of 85½ cents a bushel for the season. Trading was light. The first sale of No. 1 seed corn for $1 a bushel at any terminal market was reported at St. Louis.

Truckers continued to be the heavy buyers of corn in the country at prices higher than those quoted at terminal markets. Only 68,000 bushels were booked to arrive in Chicago yesterday, and much of this was reported to have been drawn from another terminal market. Reports from Winnipeg stated that truckers from the United States have been coming to that market for feed grains and paying full duty to bring them into this country.

Further reductions were reported in the visible supply of both wheat and corn, the corn stocks falling 1,418,000 bushels and wheat declining 2,348,000 bushels. For the five leading grains the visible supply total now is only 198,377,000 bushels compared with a total of 272,993,000 bushels a year ago. This is a 27 per cent decrease.

109 Complete Leader Training Class Work

Mrs. Thomas H. Boggess This Year Finishes 12-Credit Course for Diploma.

Credit cards for completing the six-weeks "leadership training school" courses were awarded 109 registrants Monday night by Prof. D. A. Worcester, dean of the school, as he brought the series of classes to an end. For Mrs. Thomas H. Boggess, this year's work completed the 12 credits required for a diploma, it was announced, but the International Council of Religious Education will make the diploma award later.

The six classes which have met each week at the Y. W. C. A. were sponsored by the Lincoln council of religious education and drew a total enrollment of 229. Twenty-four churches participated, with 28 students from Calvary Evangelical the biggest single church representation.

No church group had 100 per cent completion of the work, but two denominations, Disciples of Christ and Evangelical, had 28 students each receiving credits. Methodist-Episcopal students were next with 26 cards awarded to them.

This was the ninth year for the training school. Faculty members were: Prof. Worcester, Prof. Phillip G. Johnson, Rev. James Macpherson, Dr. Ray E. Hunt, Mrs. Angeline C. Anderson, Mrs. C. O. Bruce, and Ward Gray. Miss Gertrude Hanford was registrar.

May Take Ashland Labor Dispute To Washington

If Lincoln Claim Not Favored By Latenser, Case To Be Taken To Ickes.

Further effort was being made Tuesday by the city council to convince the public works administration that the water purification plant at Ashland should be constructed wholly by Lincoln labor. If necessary, members of the council declared, "the fight for the rights of Lincoln workers will be carried to Washington."

The new fight was started with the sending to Omaha of D. L. Erickson, city engineer, and Max Kier, city attorney, for a conference with State PWA Engineer John Latenser, jr. They will insist the city be given the right to employ only local workmen on the project. Failing to get a favorable ruling from the engineer, Mr. Kier will go to Washington, and carry the complaint direct to Secretary Ickes, head of the PWA.

Renewal of the campaign was at the insistence Monday afternoon of of organized labor. Spokesmen were Frank E. Coffey, and Britt Pryor, president of the Nebraska federation of labor, and W. W. Morphew, head of the local common labor union.

The union leaders read from a PWA bulletin the following:

"It should always be borne in mind "that great numbers of projects were undertaken with the local unemployed situation uppermost in mind, and that the municipality or other borrower paying for the project has very definite rights under the PWA regulations in supplying residents as workers on the project."

"Lincoln labor has been commuting for more than 25 years between this city and Ashland, Beatrice and Crete." Mr. Pryor said. Both Mr. Coffey and Mr. Pryor charged openly that "Someone has dealt from the bottom of the deck in this whole matter."

In support of the charge they pointed out that the city clerk of Ashland was appointed as a representative of the re-employment service "seemingly for the convenience of conditions at Ashland, thereby excluding Lincoln men from the project."

SAYS BUSINESS WITH PRESIDENT

Koupal Tells Credit Men Change Has Taken Place.

OMAHA, Nov. 20—(AP)—R. V. Koupal of Lincoln, general secretary of the Federation of Nebraska Retailers, in an address before the closing session of the convention here of the Associated Credit Bureaus of Nebraska, said "I think business is now working wholeheartedly with the president to go some place." Koupal added, "You know that hasn't been the case before.

Discussing measures likely to come before the next legislature Koupal said: "If they mean extra taxes, then we must make an extra net profit to absorb such new taxes."

Other speakers included Pete Baird, credit manager of the Iowa-Nebraska Light and Power company at Norfolk; Joe Owens, credit manager for Miller and Paine at Lincoln, and Allen T. Hupp, secretary of the Associated Retailers of Omaha.

Mrs. Marie Butterworth of Norfolk, was elected president of the association. Max Meyer of Lincoln was named vice president, and Marvin Dodendorf of York, secretary.

A resolution adopted urged amendment of the bankruptcy laws to deny discharge from insolvency when the debtor has acted "extravagantly, recklessly or fraudently," and proposed the United States bankruptcy statutue conform more closely to the English bankruptcy act.

CALL MASTERSON IN ABLIN INQUEST

Former Husker to Testify At Hearing Into Woman's Suicide.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20—(AP)— Two members of the Chicago Bears professional football team have been ordered to appear at the inquest into the death of Mrs. Nell Walker Alblin who plunged eight floors to her death Sunday.

Upon their arrival in Chicago from New York last night, Bernie Masterson, quarterback and former University of Nebraska player, and Beattie Feathers, halfback, were told to appear Dec. 6.

Mrs. Ablin leaped from her hotel window soon after sending a telegram of congratulation to Masterson on the Bears' victory over the New York team. Testimony was given to Deputy Coroner Louis J. Nadherny that Masterson was keeping company with Mrs. Ablin, who was separated from her husband.

Feathers had received a similar telegrgram from Miss Lucille Noyse, who was a witness to the tragedy.

Testimony was given that Mrs. Ablin had brooded over the separation from her husband.

INSURANCE CASE DISCOVERY BILL

Wilkinson On Stand In District Court Hearing.

Rees Wilkinson, former president and general manager of the National Old Line Life Insurance company, was on the witness stand in District Judge Shepherd's court Tuesday in connection with a hearing on a bill of discovery action brought by Sterling Mutz and M. E. Donovan of Omaha, attorneys for the liquidating agent for the company, which is now in receivership under the state department of insurance.

The purpose of the bill of discovery action, Mutz said, is threefold:

1. To examine the management of the company.
2. To determine the value of certain securities pledged to the department of insurance.
3. To determine the whereabouts of some of the company's properties which have not yet been turned over to the receiver in order that he may proceed with his liquidation.

A verbal flareup between Mutz and Donovan occurred as the hearing opened. Donovan, originally appointed attorney for the liquidating agent, later removed by Insurance Commissioner Herdman, and recently re-instated by District Judge Chappell, entered his appearance with protests by Mutz, who had been appointed when Donovan was removed.

As it stands at present Donovan and Mutz will share the fees equally. Mutz claimed Tuesday that Donovan isn't recognized by the department of insurance, that his reinstatement has been superseded by a notice of appeal. Judge Shepherd said, however, that Donovan could sit in o nhe case.

Rail Board Seeks To Retain Jurisdiction

Anticipating a conflict with the new federal communications commission, Railway Commissioner Floyd Bollen Tuesday declared the Nebraska commission will continue to fix depreciation rates for telephone property in Nebraska until and unless the U. S. Supreme court denies the state commission's jurisdiction in the matter.

Bollen returned Tuesday from Washington where he last week attended a hearing before the new commission on the issue of depreciation rates. The commissioner said he served notice on the federal body that Nebraska will continue to exercise jurisdiction in the matter of depreciation rates for intrastate telephone properties, regardless of what action the federal commission takes.

Large Delegation.

New York followed Nebraska's lead, Bollen said, at the hearing which was attended by representatives of about 42 states. The Nebraska commissioner said he assured the federal commission Nebraska will co-operate with it in establishing depreciation rates, but that in no case will the Nebraska body consider as final any orders by the federal commission fixing rates on intrastate telephone property.

The Northwestern Bell Telephone Co., of Omaha recently appealed to the Nebraska Supreme court an order of the Nebraska commission reducing that company's depreciation rate for 1934, challenging the commission's jurisdiction. Bollen said he expects this case to be taken to the U. S. Supreme court, since the issue of jurisdiction is presented clearly for settlement.

FATHER-SON DINNER AT SACRED HEART PARISH

The introduction of their new pastor, Rev. Terrence Anglin, and an address by Herbert L. Cushing of the state department of public instruction, were features of a program for fathers and sons of Sacred Heart parish Monday night. About 135 attended, and Thomas J. Connelly served as the toastmaster. D. L. Gross gave the address of welcome and John Connelly responded. John Dunman presented a skit and John Flannigan sang several solos. Orchestral numbers were presented by Bertrand Ellsworth and group singing was led by Bob Martin. Rev. Donatus Ahearn and Rev. Ephram O'Sullivan led the devotional exercises. Dinner was served by the church women.

Because a shout among the hills sounds like the voices of many, a helpless little band of Britons stampeded and routed a large army of Picts about 500 A. D., at a point near Vocal Mountain in England.

The invading army could have easily overwhelmed the Britons had not their fears caused them to retreat, panic-stricken. Germanus, leader of the Britons, marched his small band to a point surrounded by hills where they would be concealed from the invaders. When the Picts came within earshot Germanus ordered his men to shout "Hallelujah" at the top of their voices three times.

The resultant roar, and the reverberations that it set up back and forth through the surrounding hills, gave the Picts the idea that the Briton army far exceeded theirs in numbers. While the echoes were still running through the hills they halted their advance and fled in wild disorder.

The Amazon, largest river in South America and chief member of the biggest river system in the world, rises and falls with the tide upstream as far as 400 miles from the coast. Yet, strange as it seems, the river's current can be felt 200 miles at sea—and sailors within that distance learn to determine the distance to land by the taste of the water.

Minerva's Mail

TAKE YOUR TROUBLES TO MINERVA

Common-Sense Cure.

The best, perhaps the only, cure for jealousy is common sense.

Jealous people know in their hearts that their fears are usually groundless, that all the bogies they dread cannot be real. If they will look at the thing squarely and fairly and keep their minds fastened upon what they know to be the truth, they can gradually conquer those yellow imps of jealousy.

"Blanche" is a sample of the typically jealous person. Through jealousy she lost one beloved some years ago and now through the same cause she is threatened with the loss of another. He is her beloved fiance. She knew he was popular when she accepted his proposal of marriage. In fact she exulted that she was the one to win his love. But now she suffers tortures whenever he looks at another girl, even though she knows she is his choice among them all, and even though she certainly wouldn't want him to be a social loss.

Every time he dances with another girl or lightly remarks upon the becomingness of her gown, everytime she glimpses him across the room in animated conversation with a girl or even a group of which she is not one, she inwardly boils. And, alas, she has outwardly boiled too, much to his amazement and puzzlement.

The world is full of women, attractive ones too. "Blanche" cannot expect to keep her fiance, or later her husband, from contacts with women. She doesn't honestly want to. That would be too absurd.

If she cannot trust him, he isn't worth marrying, or loving. If she has faith in him, then it is her obligation both to him and to herself to conquer her truly insane jealousy. She can do it, too, if she will face the truth about her weakness and step firmly upon it whenever it shows its ugly head.

Compelling Attention.

Dear Minerva: Why is it that some women stand out head and shoulders above others, yet they are no more beautiful nor better dressed nor definitely accomplished or outstandingly charming? I suppose it is that elusive personality which they possess. Whatever it is, I wish I had more of it. When people knew me well, they like me. But I simply pass unnoticed in a group. Can such a quality of distinction be cultivated, do you believe. If so, have you any suggestions as to the means?—ALTA.

A.—The question of developing a distinctive personality is one which occupies the time and efforts of many specialists. Some people believe that a fascinating, dominating personality is born and not made. Others believe definitely that it can be cultivated through various methods of self improvement. I believe that, to a degree, personality is inborn, but that it can also be improved, even cultivated through study, self control and determination.

Poise and posture are important assets and may be cultivated through exercise and intelligent practice. The modulation of the speaking voice and both the choice and pronunciation of words are important. The psychology of one's outlook upon life is exceedingly important. The woman who has developed a strong, cheerful philosophy has much to give to others. She is free from petty malice and gossip and is likely to have true interest in those about her.

Graciousness of mind and manner depend much upon good habits, good thoughts, character and health. Add to these a real interest in life, unselfishness, true zest for all and the poise and manners to gracefully convey the inner thoughts to others, and you are sure to have a compelling loveable personality.

Answered Briefly.

Eleanor: Why not invite personally the few you want to for your wedding and word your invitation "request the pleasure of your company at the wedding reception," setting the time for the reception half an hour following the ceremony. Many people follow this procedure.

G. B.: You have no doubt done all you could be expected to do for the problem son. But of course you won't stop there. You will continue to do that little bit more that may at any time prove the solution to his difficult ways. I would hazard a guess that the boy is not placed with the right group at school, that he really does not have enough to do, thus he manages to get into considerable mischief and still make more than passing grades. If you haven't talked this over with his teacher, I'd suggest that you do so. I think your quest should be to find constructive occupations that will truly interest him, and thus keep him out of mischief.

Doerr Defends Water Fee Complained of By University Place Man

Complaint against what he terms excessive water meter rentals, was made to the city council by L. O. Williams of University Place. Under new regulations set up by the council recently he must pay $1.50 per month for a one-inch meter. The old rate was 50 cents. "Why should I be penalized by this inconsistent charge," he says in his letter.

The charge is not inconsistent, Commissioner Doerr declared. "Fremont charges $2.50 per month for a one-inch meter. At Kansas City the charge is $1 for a ¾-inch, $1.40 for a 1-inch and $2.75 for a 1½-inch, and up to $85 per month for a 6-inch meter. Where the charge for a 6-inch is only $30."

Declaring that Mr. Williams has no grounds for complaint, because of the "meter being slow," Mr. Doerr said that a test has shown that 1½ gallons a minute going through the meter would not make it register. "At three gallons per minute it was 20 per cent slow. On the basis of 1½ gallons per minute loss through the meter not registering, Mr. Williams would be getting free water worth $9.60 per month."

According to the head of the water department the municipal plant has been losing upwards of $25,000 annually because of slow meters. Tests on 472 meters, he declared, have shown that they averaged 20 per cent slow. Eighty-four were more than 30 per cent slow; 18 50 per cent slow,

All First District Counties For Luckey

Each of the 11 counties in the first congressional district contributed to the aggregate plurality of 10,829 which Congressman-elect H. C. Luckey, democrat, received in the late election over his republican opponent, Marcus L. Poteet.

The official totals for the entire district were: Luckey, 55,897; Poteet, 45,058; Sanford, petition candidate, 4,662.

Luckey's largest lead was in Butler county, where he had almost 1,900 plurality in a practically 2-to-1 vot. His slimmest margin was 58 in Otoe county.

Official totals in the fifth congressional district, corrected Tuesday morning, show 55,707 for H. B. Coffee, demo., and 49,161 for A. N. Mathers, rep. This is a plurality of 6,546 for Coffee, Mathers was found to have 100 more votes in Scotts Bluff county than had previous been credited to him. Two petition candidates, Applegate and Sell, polled 1,044 and 1,012, respectively.

All counties in the state except Custer, Franklin, and Sarpy had reported their official returns to the secretary of state's office at noon Tuesday, and these were expected to get their figures in during the day.

Splendid Acting Marks University Players Offering

Most Lincoln drama fans will find the presentation of Leopold Atlas' melancholy play, Wednesday's Child, justified by the splendid manner in which was presented. It opened Monday night in Temple theater for a week's run with a University Players cast supplemented by a bright group of juvenile actors from Miss Pauline Gellatly's classes.

The play, powerful in its simplicity, touching in its masterful presentation of an unhappy situation, somewhat fails to satisfy. While its faithfulness to reality can hardly be challenged, one feels that it might have pointed some avenue of escape from what was left as a hopeless dilemma.

The story is one of a mismated couple, the tragedy of whose mistake falls squarely onto the shoulders of their young son. They are divorced, the wife remarries. Unhappy in his mother's custody the boy leaves her, hopes to find happiness in a father-son existence. But returning to his father he finds him also re-marrying, is thwarted again. Driven back into himself by these considerations he enters a boy's school, faces life with a drab outlook.

Bob Ager was splendid in the part of the son and his acting showed both native ability and splendid training by Miss Gellatly and by Pete Sumption who directed the show. His prayer "Please make my mother love only my father, God," at the end of the grand second scene in which five other enthusiastic youngsters participated, moved the audience deeply.

Hill Adds To Repute.

Irving Hill, as the father, added to the admirable reputation for excellence which he is building on the Temple stage. Tender with a sweet tenderness, furious with majestic rage, he moved deftly through his part. Blanche Carr as the wife deserves praise for interpretation of the bafflement and bewilderment which tormented her soul when she awoke to the realization she had failed both as a wife and a mother.

Melvin Fielder, the wife's lover, later her second husband, displayed charming poise and gave a faithful interpretation. Florence Smeerin, whose role as a nurse called for perhaps three lines, should bear notice. Her quiet grace holds the promise that she may be capable of more important work.

Director Sumption's diligent labors were plainly reflected in the neatness of the presentation. With seven different settings and numerous lighting effects to arrange, Don Friedly deserves much credit for laudable accomplishment. The music by the Temple Theater orchestra directed by W. T. Quick was spirited.

Fried Is Drafted To Help Prevent Disasters At Sea

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—(AP)—The hero of a dozen spectacular sea rescues has been drafted by the government to help prevent loss of life and cargoes on the world's waterways.

He is Capt. George Fried, who so often has reached sinking vessels "in time." He was named late yesterday by President Roosevelt as supervising inspector for New York in the first move in a projected reorganization of the steamboat inspection service.

Assessor's 'Property Hunt' Brings Big Returns To Lancaster Treasury

Comes November 1 each year and the tax books are delivered from the assessor to the county treasurer. That however, is not where the year's work ends in County Assessor James Sheffield's office—it is merely where a fascinating phase of it begins.

For members of the office staff turn "detective" and plunge deeply into the important "search for missing personal property." Each year, "by hook or crook," from $8,000 to $15,000 worth of taxes are missed in the original assessment. Some persons deliberately falsify their schedules but in most cases it is a slip of the memory or possibly a mere twist of fate.

Opening the search, the office staff checks each 1934 schedule against those in the 1933 books. When they find persons and property listed last year, not this year, they find out why—by mail, by phone, by personal calls. The 1933 search brought in an extra $10,000 worth of taxes, this year promises as much.

Some of Findings.

Consider the quirks they run into:

A wife will tell the precinct assessor who calls at the residence that their car is assessed at the office. The husband will say that it is assessed at home. Result: It goes on the tax lists at neither place.

A man may turn in his schedule one year under the name of John, the next year J. E, the year after that in his wife's name. It leads to endless confusion.

Wives will often make out an unnecessary schedule, duplicating the one made out by their husbands. They think, incorrectly, that an assessment in their name will give them title to the property. (This happens in families where there are marital troubles.)

People with roomers will refuse to report the names or possessions of the latter.

Many report they are in the city temporarily, that they pay their taxes in another county. A later check—by mail—usually reveals that they pay them at neither place.

People think, incorrectly, that if they do not buy a license for their car it should not be assessed.

Through newspaper reports of stolen property (mostly jewelry), the assessor's office often learns of the existence of personal property which the persons from whom it was stolen have never reported.

Very often people move from precinct A, before the assessor has reached them, into precinct B after the assessor there has already passed the vacant house or apartment into which they move.

The diligent search conducted each year by the assessor's office leads members of the staff down many channels of deduction and induction. An example of the grief they run into—in 1933 Lancaster county citizens reported 22,682 automobiles and trucks on their schedules yet licenses for approximately 30,000 cars were sold in the county. Taking the license list each car had to be traced in the personal property check.

Members of Assessor Sheffield's staff who carry on the fascinating—although sometimes rather wearing—search, are Miss Elsie Anderson, J. R. C. Miller, Miss Tyna Baer, Mrs. Dove Howey, and Miss Helen Gumaer. It takes nearly three months for the detective work.

Code Meeting—Code authorities discussed problems of wage and hour compliance at a meeting at the chamber of commerce Tuesday. Phil Runion and H. B. J. Meyer were chief speakers.

Lincoln Garden Club To Join State Group

Affiliation with the Nebraska State Federation of Garden clubs was voted at the Monday evening meeting of the Lincoln Garden club at Morrill hall. The state organization will be completed during the organized agriculture week early in 1935. About 100 members were present

Mrs. A. C. Nelson, club president, announced that at the next meeting, to be held Tuesday, Dec. 11, all photographs on the garden club contest will be in and on display, and prizes will be awarded. Election of officers will also be held at that time. C. P. Russell was named chairman of the nominating committee, to serve with Mrs A. E. Sheldon, Mrs. George Smith, Mrs. W. A. Robbins and Dr. David C. Hilton

Appearance of lilies in important historical events, beginning in ancient times, was outlined by Miss Marjorie Shanafelt. She declared that the claim of Edward III of England for the French throne was partly based upon the fact that lilies appeared in the crest. This claim continued for several reigns and was one of the causes for the 100 years war, she said. The lecture was illustrated by a series of colored slides, and also pointed to references of the lily in Grecian and Egyptian mythology
